What is so rare as that day in June, as the graduates proceed down the aisles of Convention Hall? Inside we can see the class gathered together for the last time. After all is over, greetings are exchanged outside the doors of the hall, and the class of '42 is but a memory.

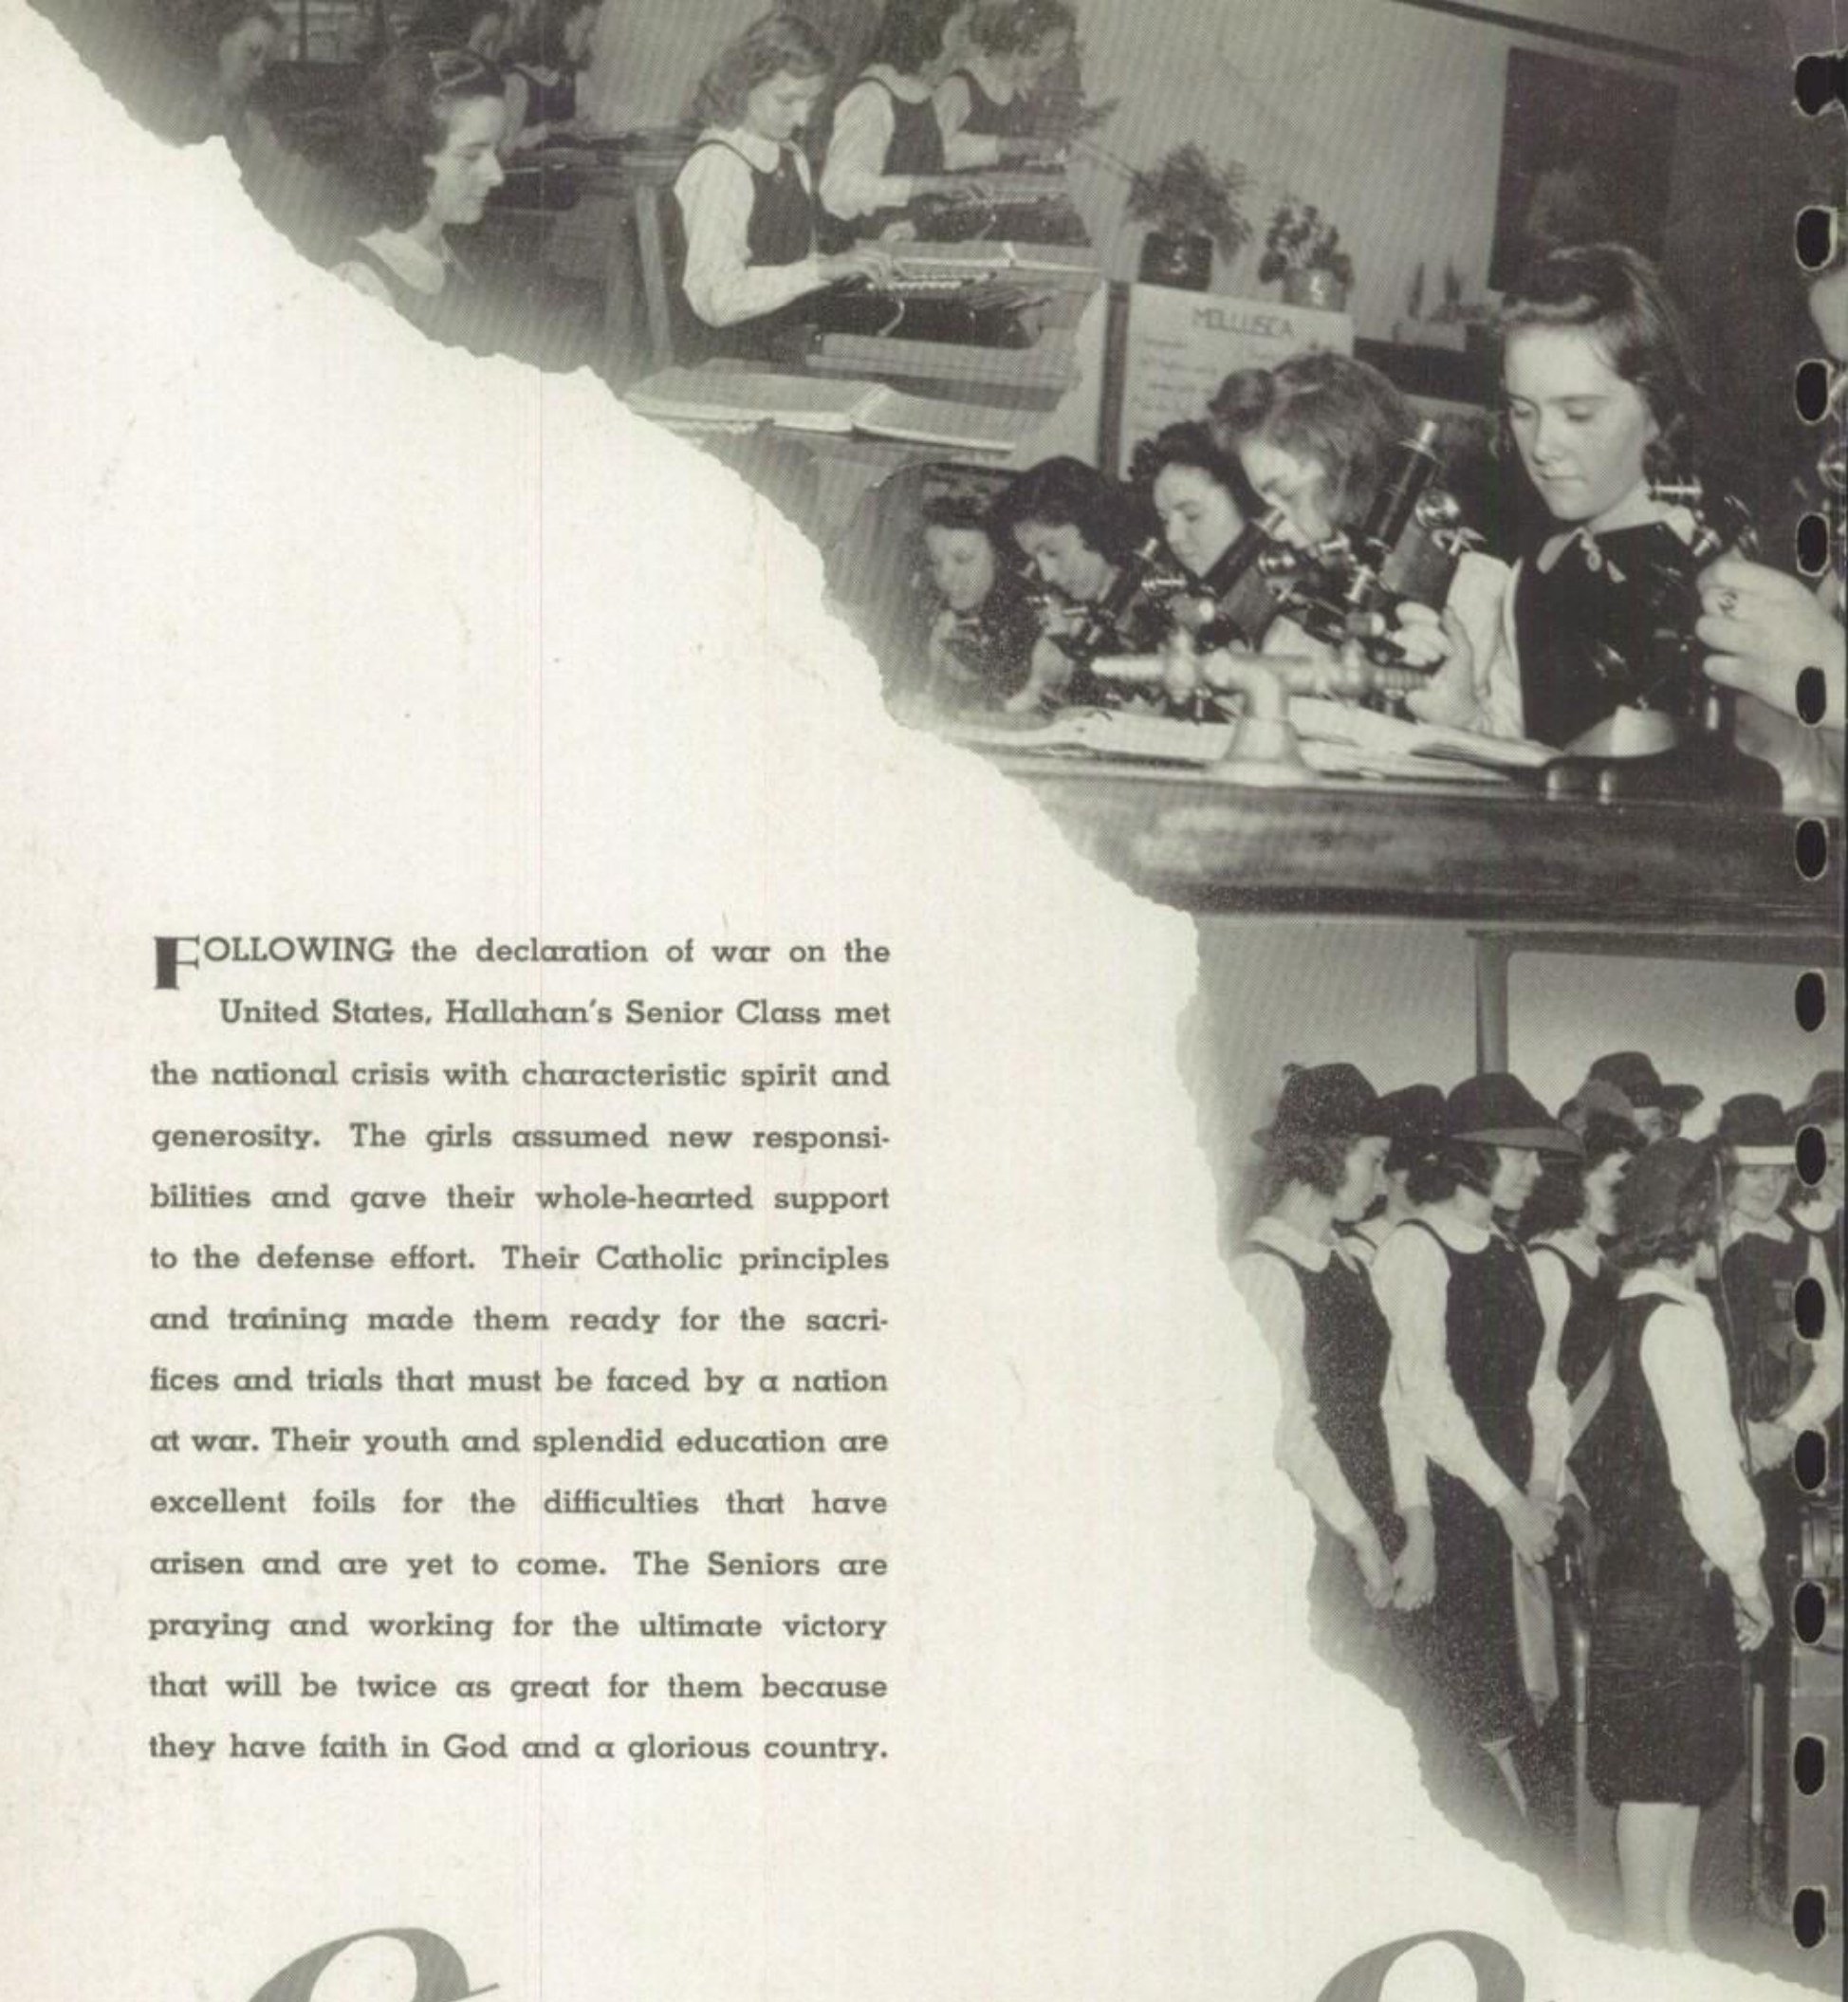
Presenting . . .



FOLLOWING the declaration of war on the United States, Hallahan's Senior Class met the national crisis with characteristic spirit and generosity. The girls assumed new responsibilities and gave their whole-hearted support to the defense effort. Their Catholic principles and training made them ready for the sacrifices and trials that must be faced by a nation at war. Their youth and splendid education are excellent foils for the difficulties that have arisen and are yet to come. The Seniors are praying and working for the ultimate victory that will be twice as great for them because they have faith in God and a glorious country.

IN Philadelphia, a nation was born. Here, we have the birthplace of the four God-given freedoms that every true American cherishes—freedom of worship, speech, press, and assembly. As Philadelphians, we see liberty always symbolized by our precious historic shrines. Independence Hall was the cradle from which our freedom grew and our Liberty Bell proclaimed the courageous declaration of American independence. Following tradition, Philadelphia continues to lead the struggle for man's rights and her efforts will keep the torch of American liberty aflame.

The Hallahan faculty and students have responded graciously to the government's appeal for all-out cooperation in the war effort. They have supported the Red Cross and sold Defense Stamps. Both the faculty and the students have studied first aid. Both groups have knitted in friendly competition. They have collected religious articles for the men in the armed forces. Conservation of material has been emphasized by the daily collection of discarded papers and other scrap materials.

The need for skilled war workers has prompted many Hallahan students to enroll for defense training courses at the Fleisher Vocational School. The girls have studied tracing and detailing, comptometer operation, electrical assembly, the mechanics of a power sewing machine, and the mastery of the drill press. Thus, Hallahan seniors have prepared to take an integral place in Philadelphia's gigantic and vital defense industries. The challenge to national security has not gone unanswered by the Class of '42.

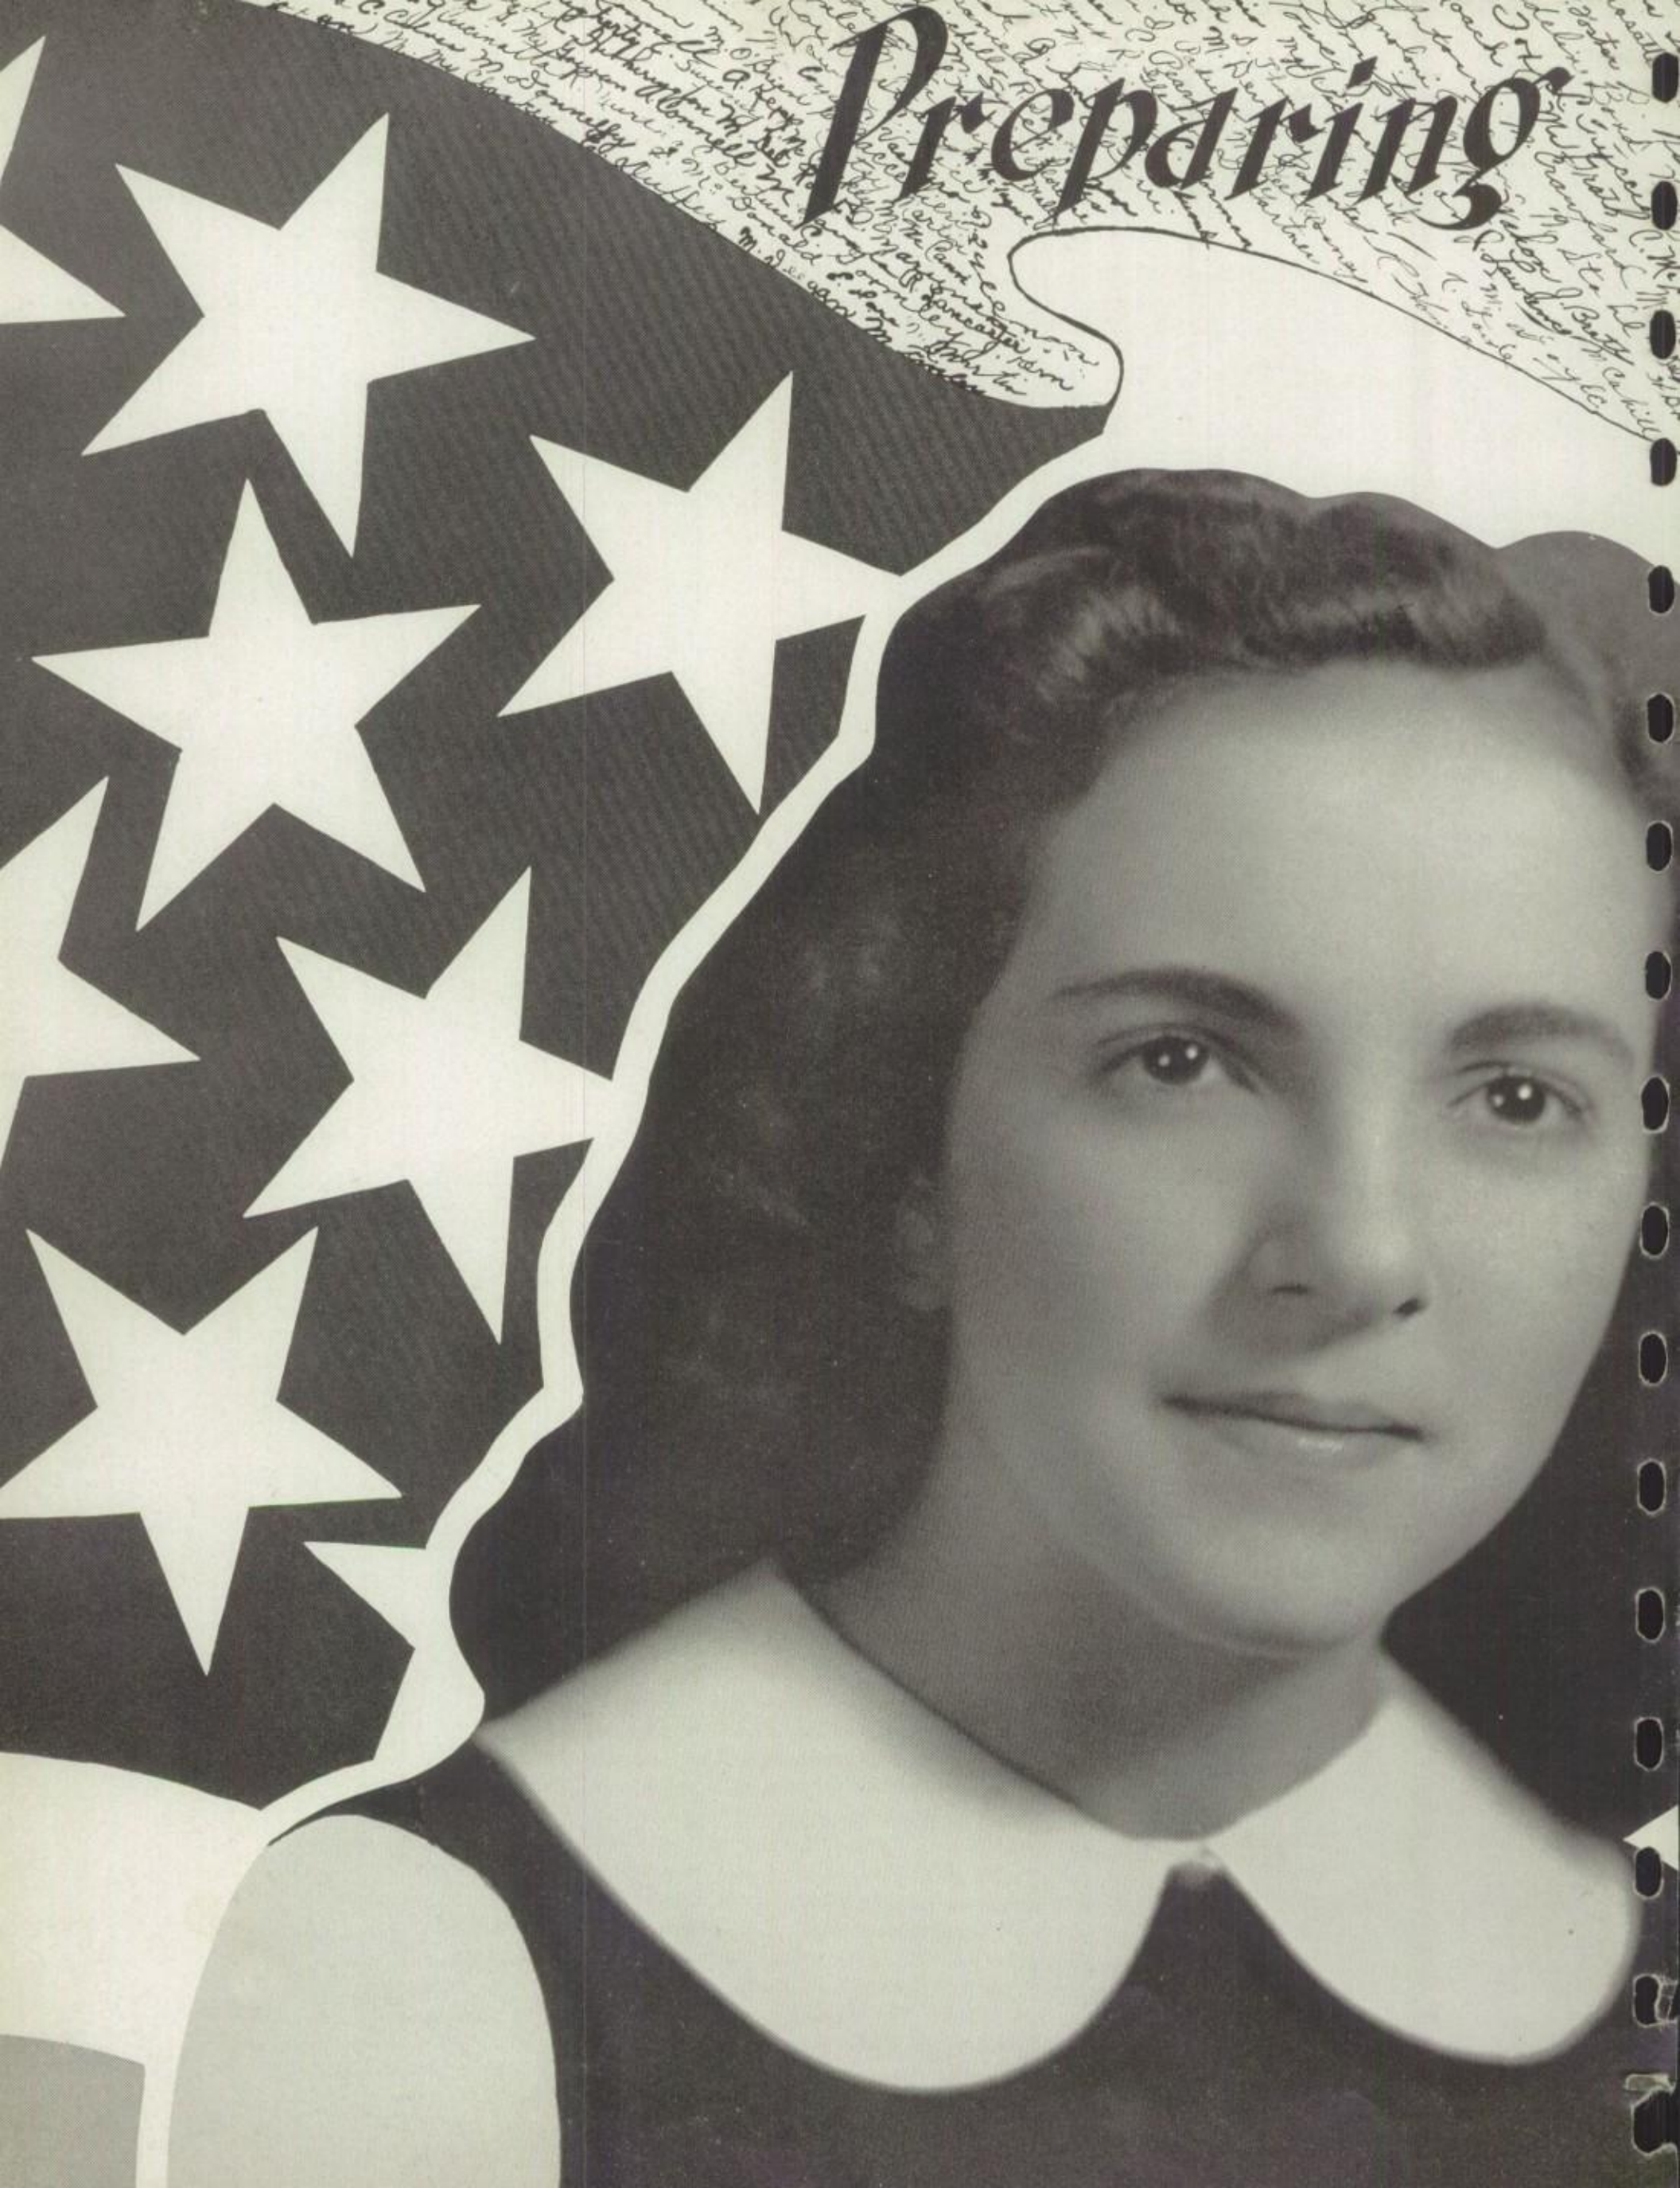
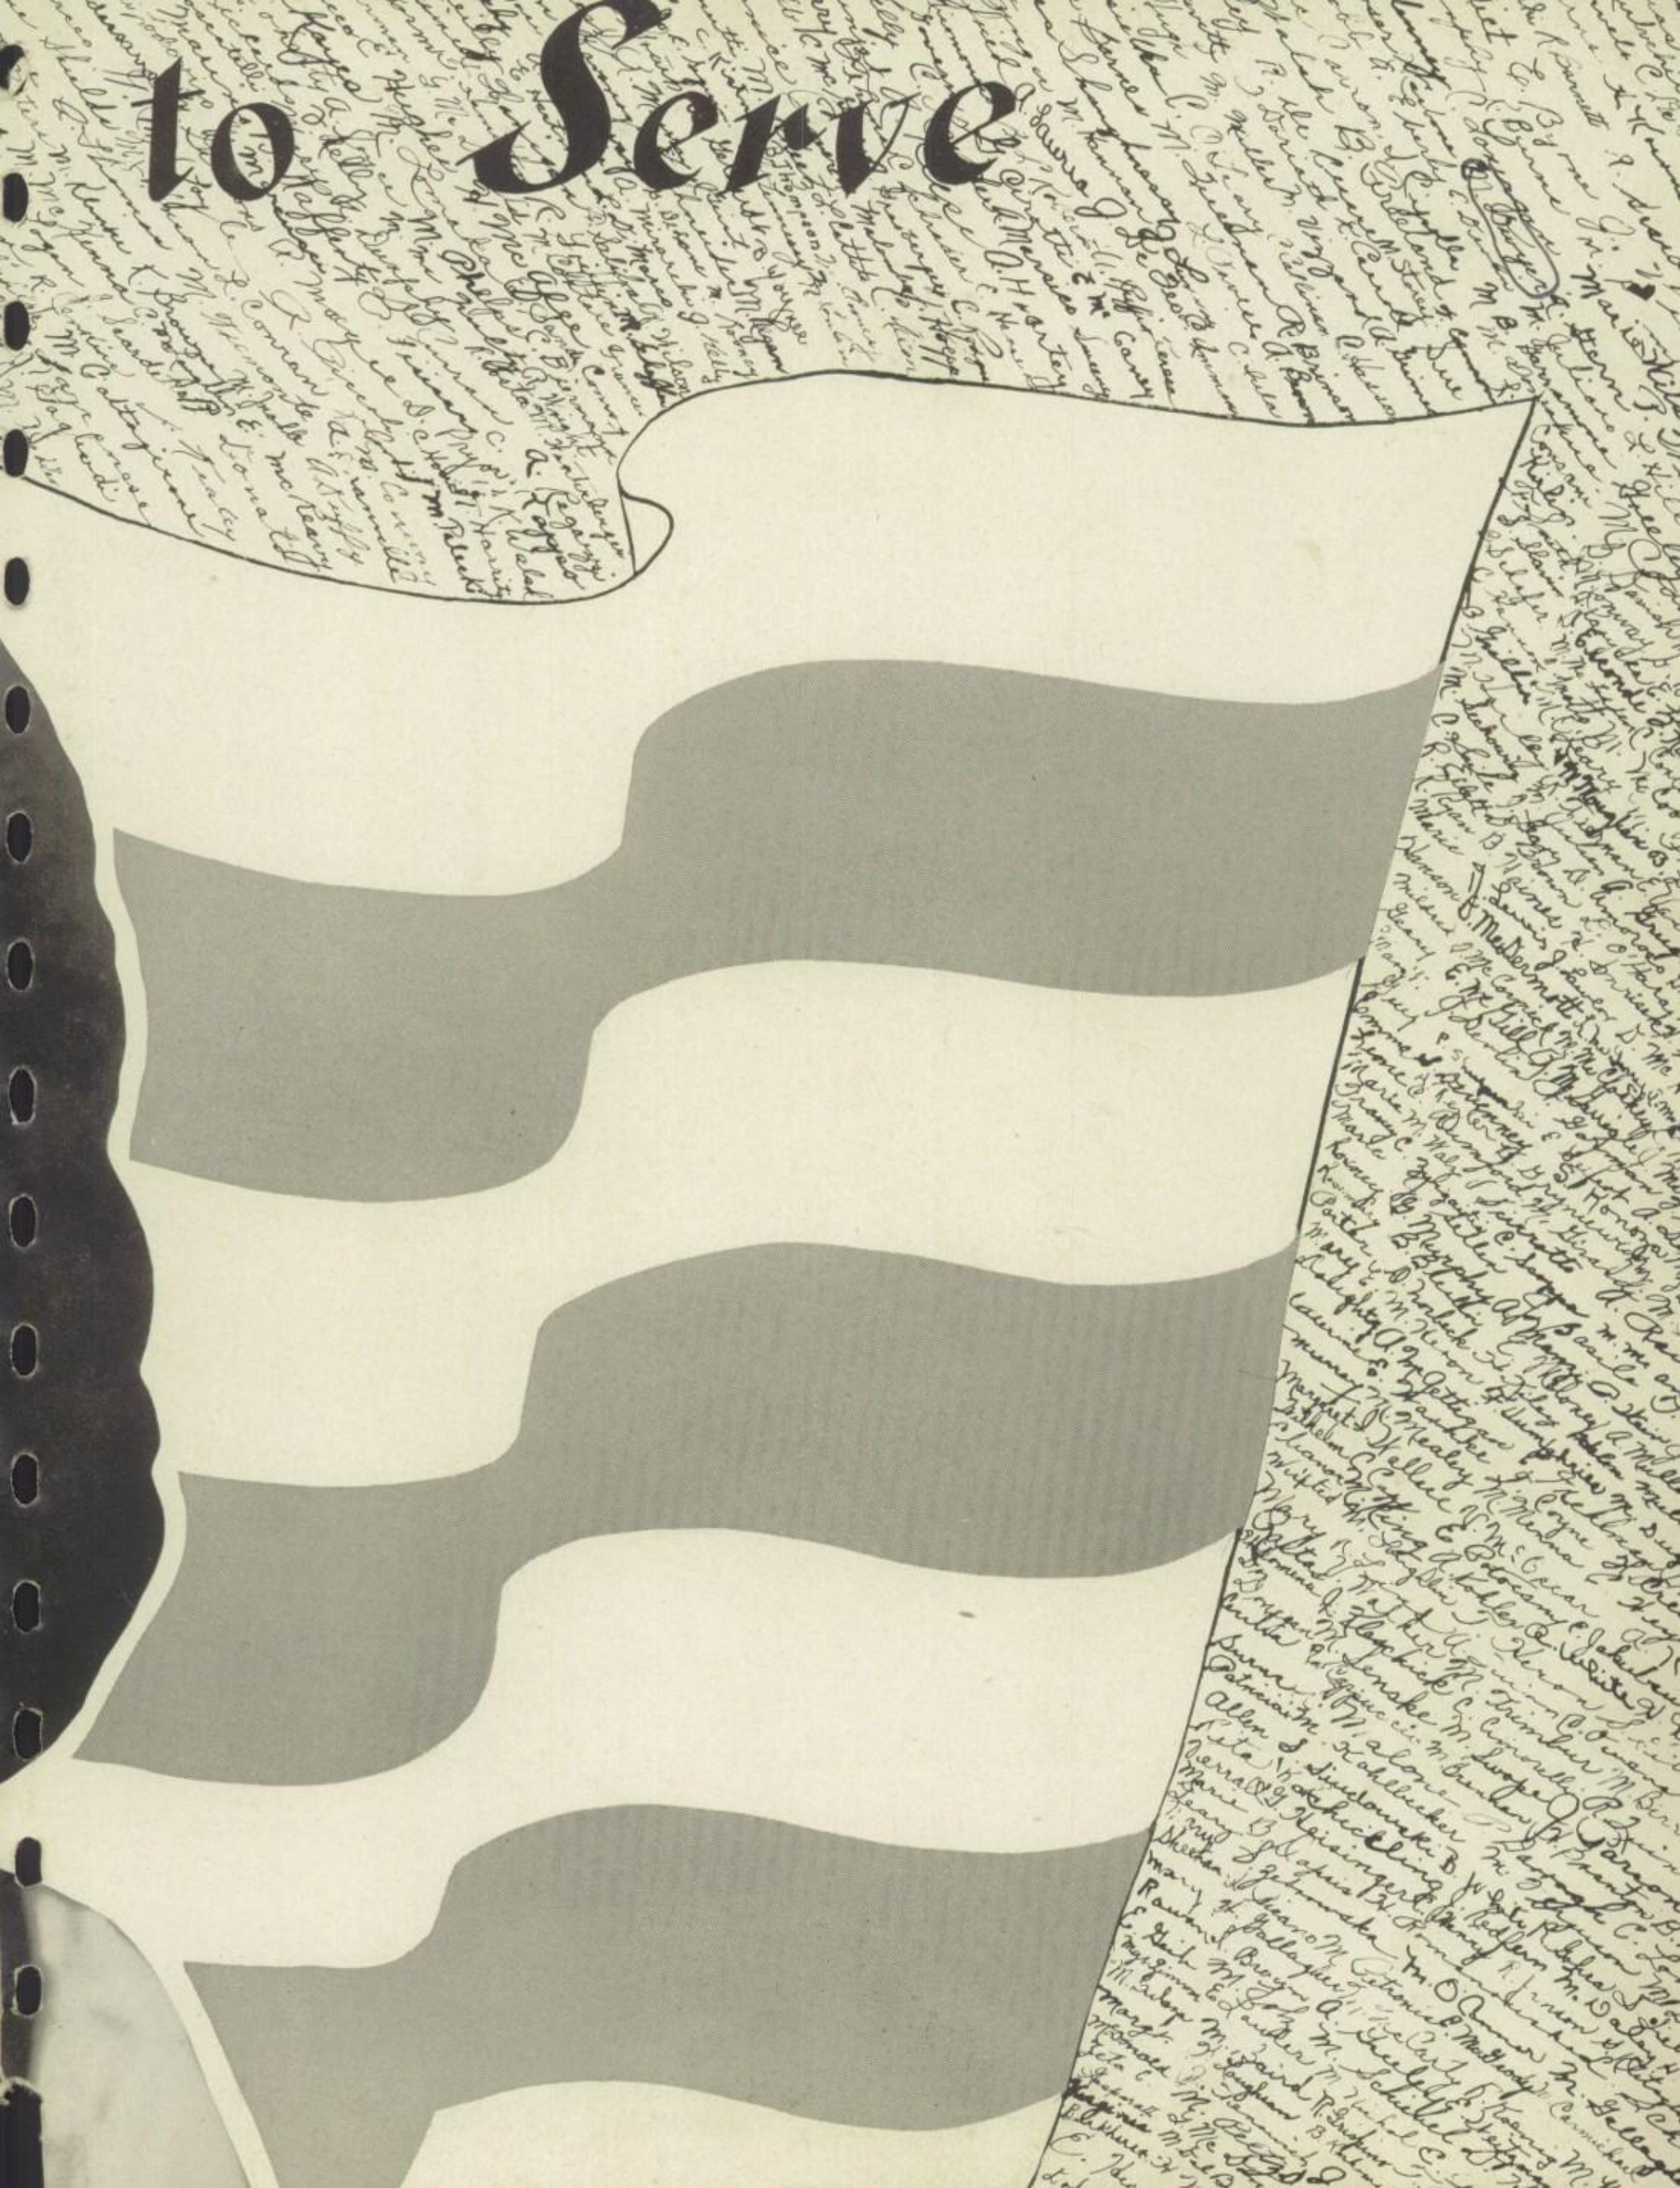
Preparing



to Serve



Hallahan, The Mother of Schools

The education of the Catholic girl is not in the quest of knowledge alone. It is inseparable from the belief that all learning should begin and end with God. This ideal was realized in 1912, the year in which the John W. Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School was founded. Throughout the years it has remained the incarnation of that ideal. Its first principal, the late Most Reverend Philip R. McDevitt, Bishop of Harrisburg, his successors, and our present superintendent, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Bonner, have striven to make the school achieve the high purpose of its foundation.

To assist the diocese in carrying out the tremendous task of Catholic high school education the West Philadelphia Catholic Girls' High was opened in 1927. Catholic education continued to march on in the opening of the Little Flower Catholic Girls' High in 1939 and St. Hubert's Catholic Girls' High in 1941.

Promoters of

Superintendent of Schools of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia

Since 1926 the Right Reverend Monsignor John J. Bonner, D.D., has superintended Hallahan with a burning zeal that glows more brightly with the years. His spirit of leadership and far-sighted vision of Catholic education have sought the best possible advantages for all under his direction. Nor is his courage daunted by the obstacles of war time. He has enabled Hallahan to adapt itself to the present crisis by fostering the ideal of self-sacrifice in each student. Because of Monsignor's untiring efforts in training the youth of today to be the unfailing citizens of tomorrow he is, "First in war, first in peace, and first in the heart of each Hallahanite."

Basic Principles and Ideals

Monsignor Bonner is ably assisted by two very efficient and capable associate superintendents, the Reverend Joseph G. Cox, J.C.D., and Reverend Joseph A. Gorham, S.T.L. To them too we owe a debt of gratitude. Their unselfish assistance has furthered the success of our school and its varied activities. We gratefully acknowledge their interest and support.

It's Off To School We Go!

These students seem happy, probably because they expect no test this day.

Eager faces prove students really anticipate the first day of school.

Right: Miss Catherine Gilchrist.

Center: Miss Monica Ryan, Monsignor Bonner's secretary, Miss Dorothy Gilchrist, Receptionist.

The First Floor . . .

Before class the corridors are filled with students hurrying to their next period. Once the bell has rung the halls are empty except for the ushers. When caught in this surging throng, one is reminded of Market Street on a very busy Saturday. At dismissal time, student officers take their places in the halls to guide the many pupils to the locker room, with its crowded exits.

Hallahan's history classes have a large enrollment. The girls may study World, American, or Modern history. In these branches of history the students learn facts gathered about the world since man has kept tangible records, the way the United States has gained and kept its freedom, and the changes that have taken place in Europe recently. To the right Margaret Ryan shows the pupils facts in government.

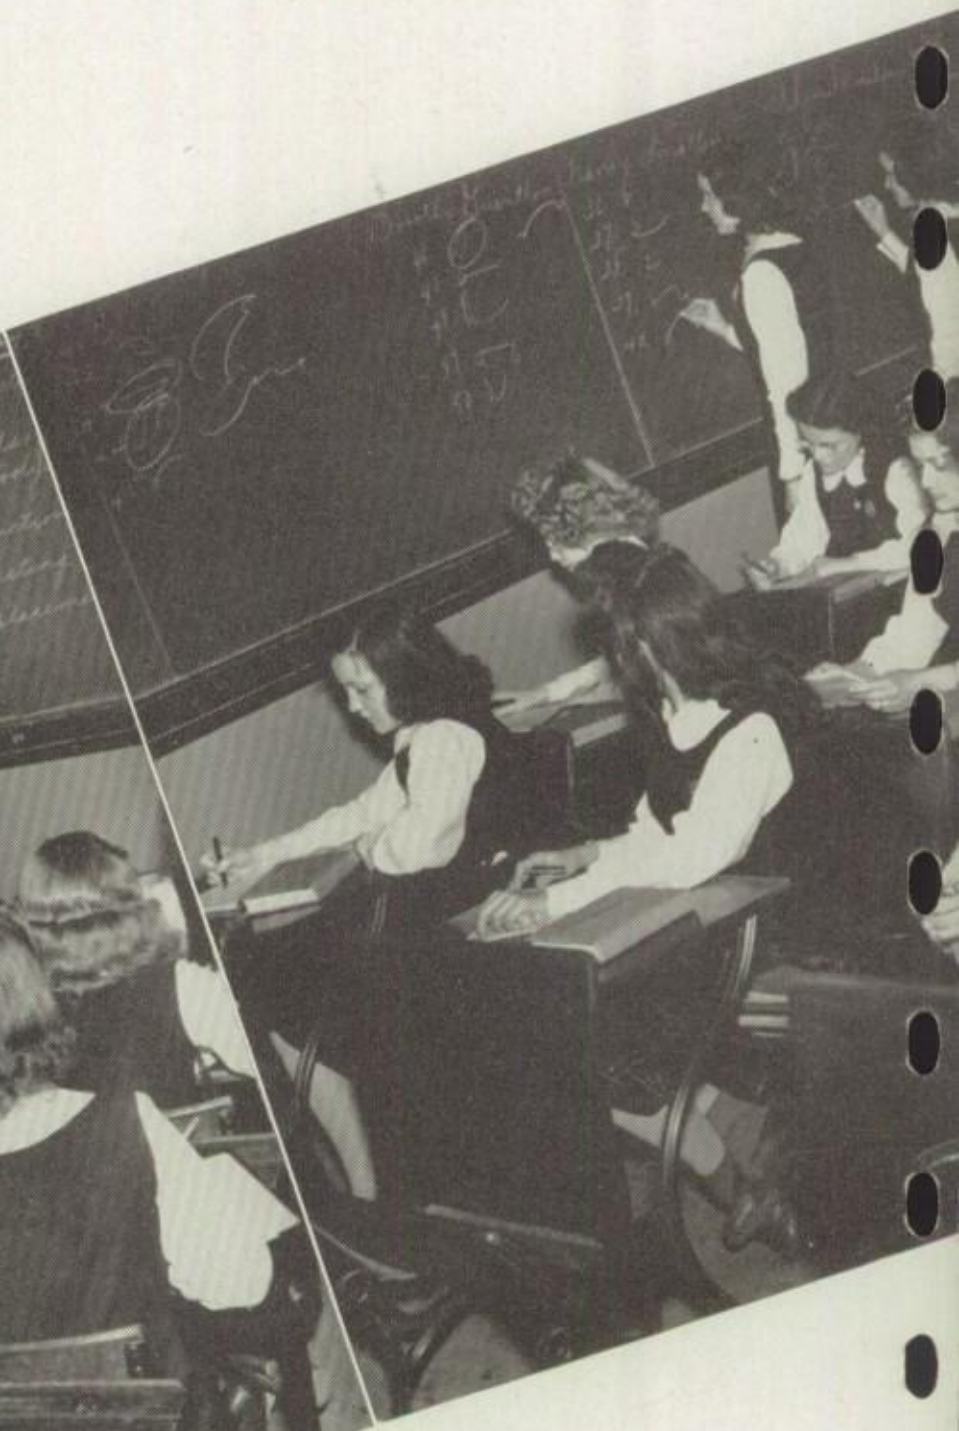
The girls in our newswriting class are very interested in their work. They learn to make headlines, the difference between a feature story and a news story, and also to read proofs and to read copy. They acquire knowledge of all that goes into the make-up of a good newspaper.

Rita Swift and Catherine Owens here decorate the bulletin board with pictures of Maurice Evans' interpretation of "Macbeth", Shakespeare's play studied by seniors. The scenes which are pictured represent some of the most frequently quoted lines. "Macbeth" is a great favorite with the students and is but one of many classics studied intensively in senior English.

Marie Hanson gives Anna Ernst her trombone while Frances Thoma looks on. Other librarians get instruments from their respective places while the music students wait.

In as much as chemistry is a requirement for nursing and because there are new fields open to women chemists, we have many senior classes.

The national crisis has made a great demand for expert stenographers; unless these students do exceedingly well in junior stenography they can not take senior transcription which enables them to procure desirable positions.



Attentive sophomores listen to the religion broadcast! Their course comprises Grace and the Sacraments including the supplementary topic, the Mass.

Industrious bookkeepers are working out their debits and credits in their Journals and Ledger. In the foreground Catherine Long, Margaret Martin, and Helen Dunleavy appear to be intent on their work.

The Second Floor

On the second floor we find Latin rooms, on the walls of which are hung maps of ancient Gaul. Next come English rooms where the students delve in Shakespeare, Shelley, and Chesterton. Here too, are the typing rooms where the rhythmic clicking of the keys is heard. Sister Carmelita's office, the community rooms of the Sisters of St. Joseph and the Sisters of Mercy, and the storeroom are on this floor. The home economics rooms where interested pupils learn to be better home makers; the mathematics rooms where the girls wrestle with trigonometry and solid geometry; and the infirmary complete this floor in the Cathedral building.

To some people Latin is without appeal but not to Hallahanites because to them it is as alive today as it was nearly twenty centuries ago. The girls in the Latin classes read the same stories that Roman students of Virgil's time read and enjoyed. Here Evelyn Bananni points out a town in Gaul to her classmates. The storeroom is a much frequented spot each day before school. Here Mother Simeon sells ever useful loose leaf note paper to a student.

Art is a popular subject at Hallahan. Here is one of the classes which includes some of our most talented artists. On the left in the second seat is Nora Walsh, the winner of the second prize in the Catholic Press Poster Contest. In the first and the third seats are Elizabeth Thompson and Bernice S. McGrath the inventive art editors of Silver Sands. If we lose our locker key we must go to the key room to secure another. To Sister Grace Francis your key is your finger-print.

Speed is the mainstay of progress in these days of strife. The business of the nation must be transacted with efficiency by reliable hands. These same hands now training will probably share that great burden. No dictatorial booming or meek mumble will disturb the steady pace and deliberate effort of Marie P. Gilbert. Only the air raid siren will cause Barbara S. Lopko to lay aside her clerical duties. May we wish our young stenographers luck in their place as aids in America's fight for victory.

Sr. Mary Grace is in charge of guidance. In addition to preparation of outlines for discussion at activity period, Sister is in charge of the functioning of the N. Y. A. here at Hallahan.

Merrill Trimbur is intent upon Louis Untermeyer's delightful book, "Doorways to Poetry." This collection of verse contains many of the poems studied by seniors. This attractive anthology displays the works of several of the well-known, modern British and American authors.

Sister Christopher lectures to a senior hygiene class in the auditorium. The course of study includes a brief summary of the history of medicine and the causes and cures of many dangerous diseases. Monthly lectures by doctors prominent in medicine supplement these lessons.

"V for Victory" is our slogan, and Miss Hallahan is prepared to do her part for national defense not only by taking courses in mechanics and first aid, but by taking a course in nutrition. She has learned the value of a well balanced diet, to build a strong, healthy America.

Miss Hallahan has also found a way to be both patriotic and chic in her clothing creations. She has turned to the conservative, simple styles, sacrificing her full skirt and long sleeve for a flare or pleat and a trim short sleeve to help the war effort.

Christine Jackson, Jean Kern and Anne Borm, seated at the first table, are all pictured engrossed in their seamstress activities. Christine refers to a guide sheet, while Jean and Anne earnestly baste.

To insure perfect fit and free movement Catherine Weyler has the armhole of her dress trimmed out by Eleanor Kvinas. The addition of the sleeves and a hem will complete another new Hallahan creation.

Delicious health salads will be the result of the preparation of the fresh fruits and vegetables by Catherine Icavone and Helen Coffey. These lassies prepare and serve salads that add zip to any meal.

After kitchen duties follow those of the laundry. While Emma Sequin is hanging up her wash, consisting of tea towels, Jean Murphy and Agatha Intocci iron curtains with the hand iron and the mangle.

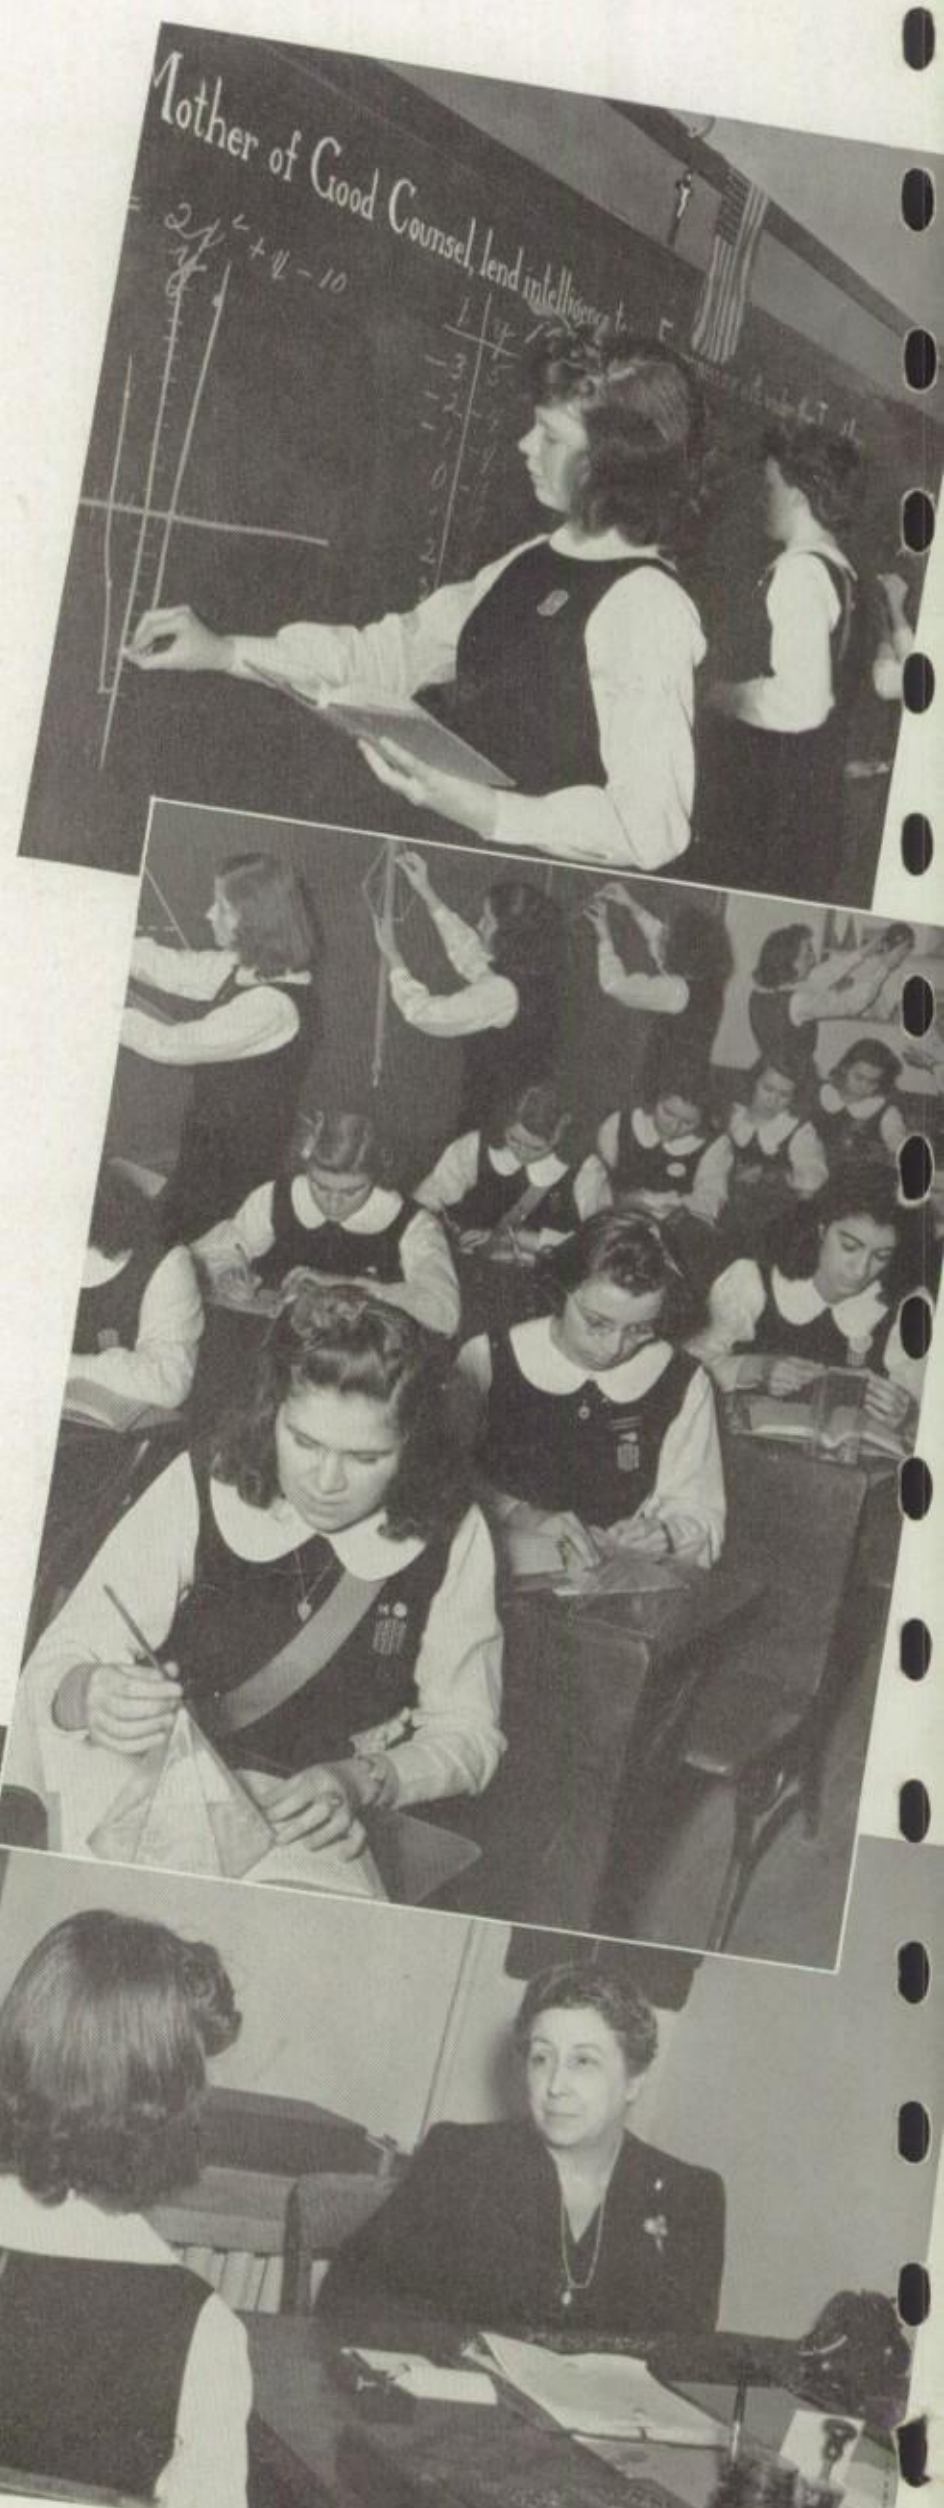
With constant stirring plus a pinch of salt and a shake of pepper, and the addition of a cup of milk when the mixture boils, Rosemary Gorman, our cook, could compare her porridge with the best of chefs.

At the end of a school day our home-makers find refreshment in a cup of coffee while they relax. Rosemary Gorman acts as hostess, serving students Misses Helen Amato, Isabel Padula, and Agnes Hall.

If X — Y = 7 then X^2 — Y^2 = ? This constitutes a problem in algebra, the most popular branch of high school mathematics, which dates to the time of the Pharoahs. It is required of the first year students because it teaches them to think and because a basic knowledge helps them solve many examples with one or two figures unknown.

The solid geometry studied by seniors is but an abbreviation of the college course. To be able to work solid, one must be able to think in space, that is, see the figures on the paper as they would be if they were truly before the pupils. Blue ribboned Anna Wintz and Clare Pearce appear to be making very rapid progress.

Miss Sara E. Laughlin is the school councillor and the representative of the White-Williams Foundation. Her advice on social and economic problems is much sought. A special feature of service is a series of talks given the seniors on problems facing the employment seeker. Former students cooperate most generously by reporting on developopments in innumerable fields. They advise the continuance of helps given before graduation.

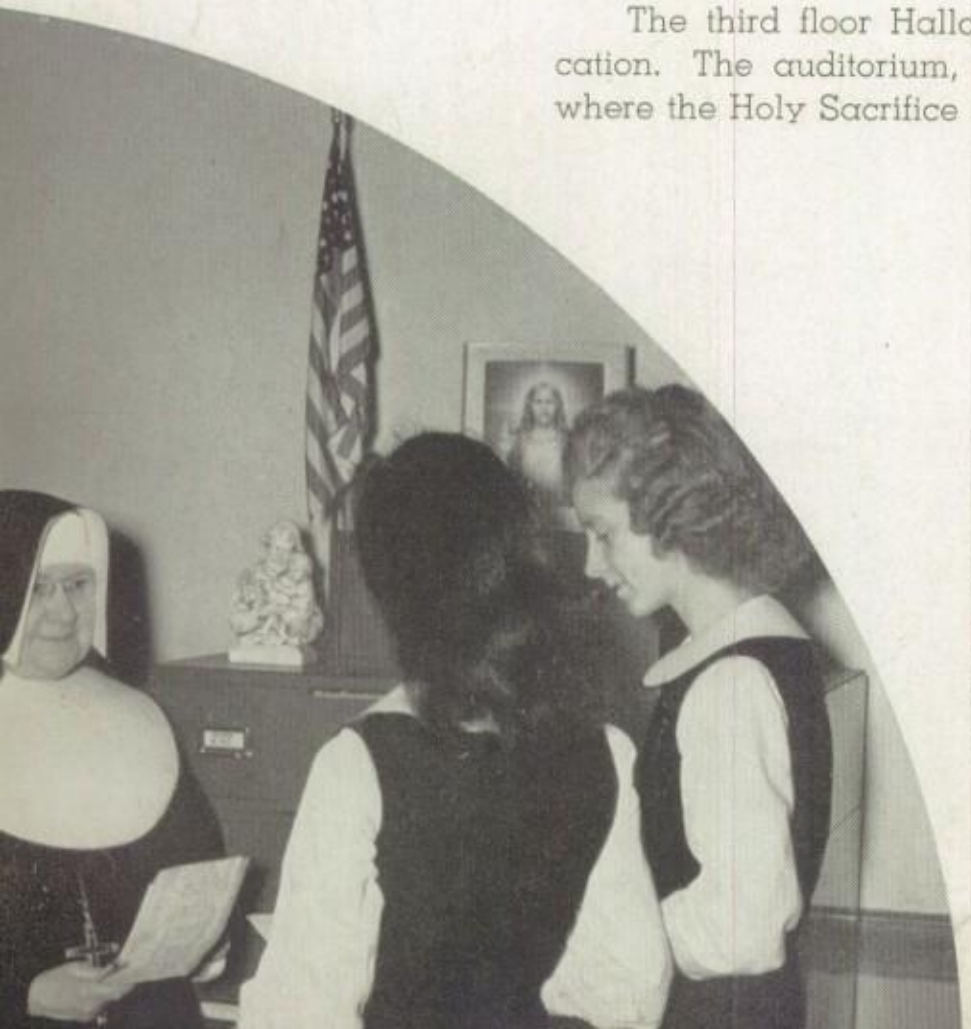


Our quiet infirmary is a refuge for sick lassies! Mary Dowdle is the girl having her temperature taken by the capable Mrs. Conway. Margaret Waite must be having a good dream in spite of her ills. Dr. Vardaro calls forth a great big "Ah-h"!

The Third Floor . . .

On the third floor of the Cathedral building, we find the library, which is a mecca for teachers and students. If you wish to speak French, discuss National Problems, or study mathematics, you will find these classes on this floor.

The third floor Hallahan offers art, chemistry, biology, and visual education. The auditorium, which is the center of interest of the school, and where the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass is offered every Friday, is located here.



Sister Mary Giovanni, I.H.M., who is the principal of the school, and the prefect of studies, makes out the rosters for the entire student body. Sister is kept busy, yet she always finds time to help the girls and advise them concerning the choice of their studies. Graduates of the school give Sister as reference to their prospective employers. Her office on the third floor of the Cathedral building is here shown, beseiged by Ann Toner and Gladys Bloh who seek her expert advice, the outcome of her wide experience.

Miss Margaret M. Hughes, the gracious and capable librarian, is accessible to faculty members and students at all times. Here zealous students make the most of the opportunities which the school library offers to them.

Informality and variety of interest are the keynotes of the fourth year French class as earnest students plan their forthcoming literary edition, "Fleurs Printanieres". Text books come to life in the visual education class where a variety of subjects is interestingly portrayed on the screen for the benefit and enjoyment of the student body.

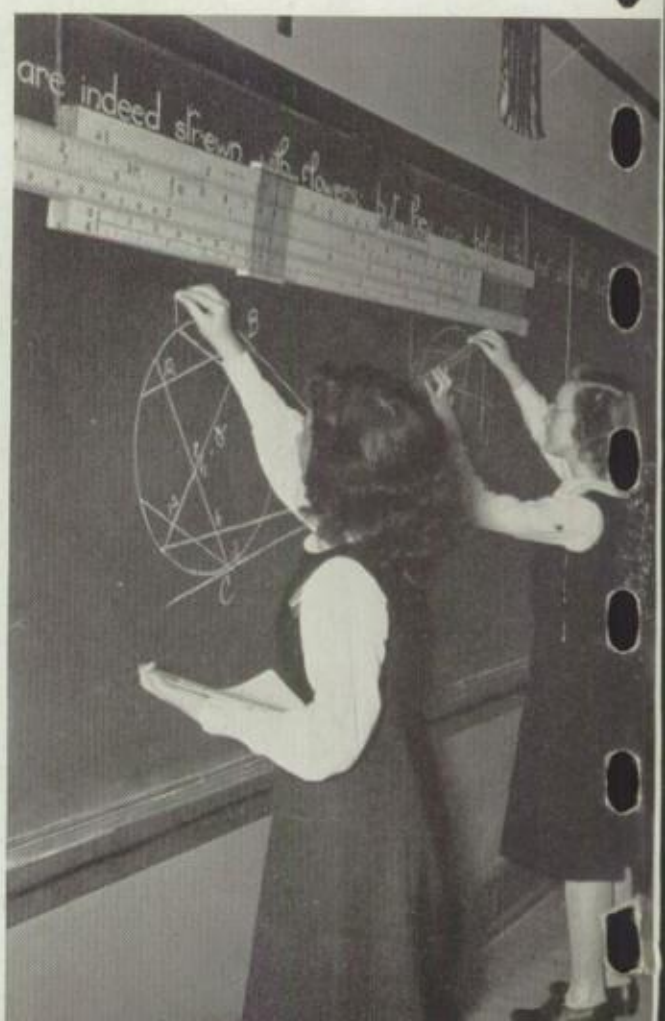
Eager, young art students paint other members of their class to prove their ability at this work. Marion Johnston poses in a colonial costume while her fellow artists sketch her. After taking Vocational Art, the young graduate may go forth to an artistic life with assurance of ability.

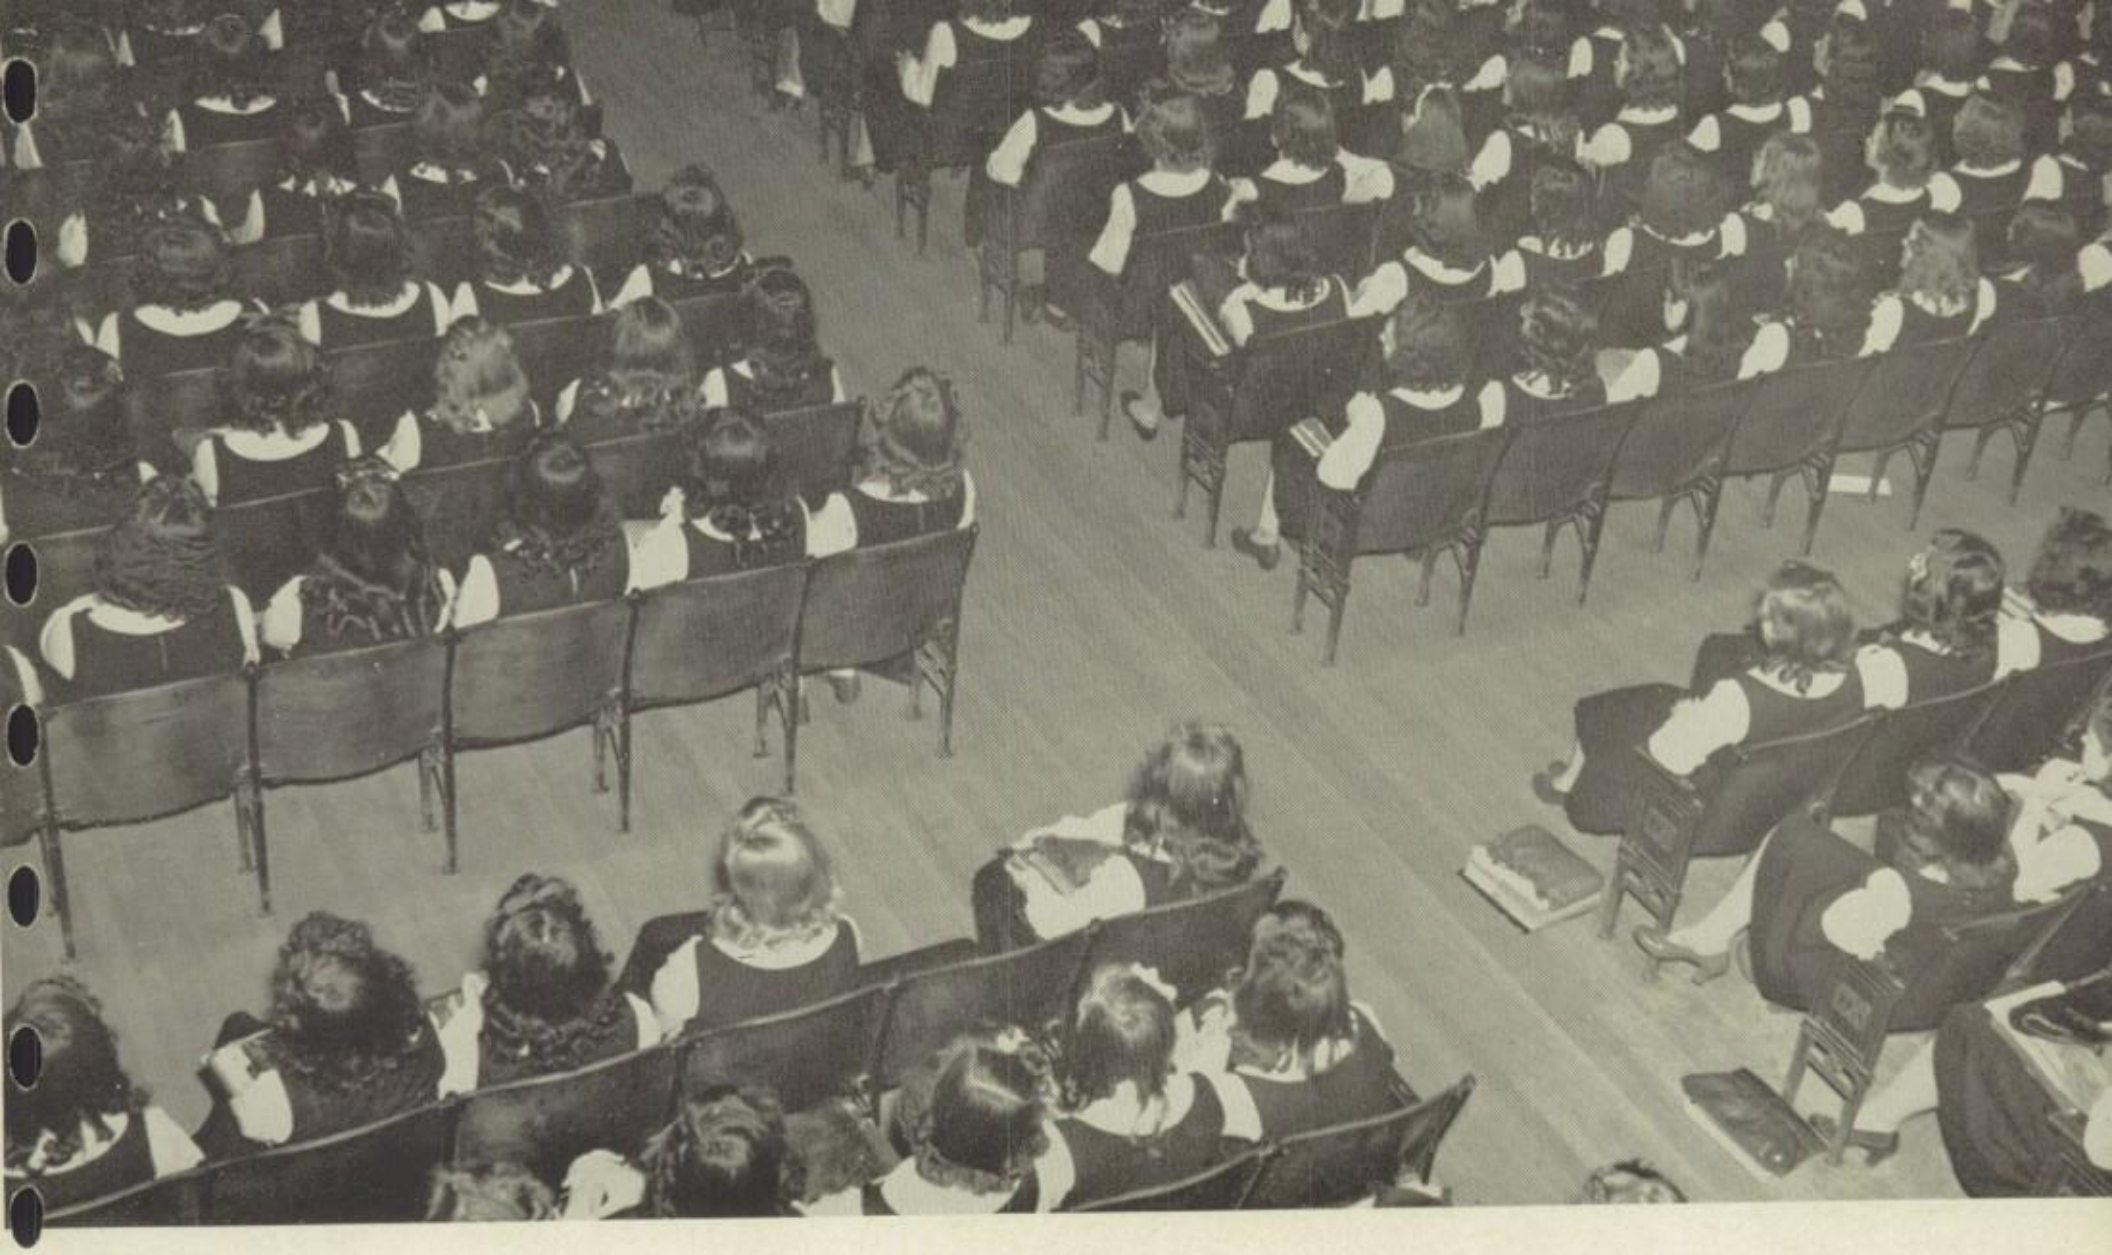
Future scientists concentrate on important problems and grow proficient in a biological world.

Circles, trangles, arcs, and angles all try to confuse the sophomore who struggles with plane geometry. Catherine Hanlon and Mary Jane McDonald draw circles on the board before trying to prove a theorem true. Geometry developes the young mind and teaches us to think clearly.

Future chemists perform tests in the laboratory before watchful eyes. Ann Quinn and Rita Lind observe Margaret Petronis and Innocenza Picano while they perform one of their tests. Various experiments lead the student to become well acquainted with apparatus in the "lab".

Patricia Mitchell explains woman's part in the war to an earnest National Problems group. Heated discussions take place about present-day affairs during National Problems classes.





Our auditorium is on the third floor of the Hallahan building. Under the official title of Alumnae Hall it is dedicated to our Blessed Mother. This spacious hall is used for various activities. Holy Mass is celebrated here every Friday morning. Benediction is given in this hallowed place during retreat and upon other occasions. The auditorium is used also for study periods and religion broadcasts daily. Aside from its use as a chapel and study hall the auditorium is also used for social assemblies. Here many of the school plays and programs are conducted. Among these are the Hallahan Day performance, the Christmas play, and Junior Day. Here, as well as debates, are conducted many special programs sponsored by the different departments and classes.

Basement

This beautiful shrine of our Lady may be a little out of the way; still Rita Costa and several others seldom miss a chance to hurry down to this hallowed nook and pray.

Below excited juniors search for assignment books as they prepare for homeward journey.

The Misses Mates, McLaughlin, and Salamao can hardly deny their names as they perform rhythmical exercises to the strains of "Carolina Moon". It may be enjoyable for some but the next day nearly all wish that they had a little more energy for climbing the steps.

Closest to the camera we see Margaret Synnamon, Isabel Rath and Anne McGlynn enjoying their lunch. In foreground Catherine Quigley drinks her daily bottle of root-beer.

Well Begun Is Half Done

St. Peter's Annex is Hallahan's oldest and largest annex, situated at Fifth and Girard Avenue. The faculty, comprised of five communities, teaches approximately six hundred twenty sophomores and freshmen. St. Peter's has long been recognized for its fine record, splendid cooperation, and courageous leadership.

Sister Vincentine, O.S.F., remains in the background of her freshman world history class, as these interested frosh discuss various forms of Imperialism.

Annexites help to spread the Yuletide spirit by preparing attractive posters for display. The young artists are glimpsed skillfully wielding the brush.

General science opens a world of vast interest to a freshman. Before unappreciated, nature is now viewed with growing wonder. Science is a captivating field.

"Mighty oaks from little acorns grow" may be fittingly applied to St. Bonaventure's Annex. Small in number, less than a hundred, in fact, they are mighty in the loyalty and the co-operation that comprise the spirit of Hallahan. Opened in 1938, St. Bonaventure's is under the direction of the Sisters of St. Francis.

Hallahan's newest annex is represented by Saint Thomas's located at Eighteenth and Fernon Streets. It was established in 1940. Here the freshmen are under the guidance of three religious communities. The student enrollment is almost 400. Saint Thomas's has that up and coming spirit!

Proud annexites display certificates which they have been awarded for knitting twenty-five or more afghan squares for the Red Cross. It's the tops again!

The orchestra of St. Thomas is pictured responding to the direction of Miss Rita Mickey. Many of these students will one day play in the annual festival.

Here eager world history students are under the guidance of Sr. Rita Catherine, O.S.F. These freshmen are laying firm foundations for social studies.

Of, By, and For the

Joan Haran takes pride in her duty as president of the student council. Joan finds time for riding and playing on the general basketball team.

Monsignor Bonner vests girls with the badge of duty, September 24. The councilors take the oath of office to uphold and defend the Hallahan girls' constitution.

The student council is an organization founded for the purpose of promoting an active student participation in the general well-being of Hallahan. Student government originated in Hallahan in 1926. Since that time, it has labored for improvements in its own system and its establishment in other local schools.

The student council consists of approximately forty members. They are elected by the Electoral College which is composed of three hundred girls chosen by the student body. The "blue ribbon" girls meet each week to discuss, propose, and sometimes pass legislation that will improve student life. Hallahan is justly proud of the outstanding work done by this distinguished group.

Following the example of our Federal Government, Hallahan has a judicial, as well as legislative and executive government. The student court, together with the other members of the student council, is elected by the students. This assembly, ably headed by Claire Rodgers, who is assisted by four other judges, hears the cases of offenders and passes sentence on them fairly and equitably. The court sessions are usually attended by the members of the student council who aid the court in reaching a decision. Offenders are made to realize that laws must be obeyed for the welfare of all students.

STUDENT REPRESENTATIVES

Jessie G. Basile, Catherine Burns, Nora Cassidy, Helen Crean, Helen Decker, Stanislas Forish, Mary Garman, Theresa Hamilton, Anna Kain, Dorothy Kelly, Jean Lawlor, Agnes Marsico, Susanna McDonald, Rita Moscatelli, Kathryn Murry, Margaret Piccorossi, Becky Lou Roberts, Marie Signs, Teresa Sweeney, Constance Zwigaitis.

The Third Annual Interscholastic Student Government Convention was held March 28, 1942, at West Philadelphia Catholic Boys' High School. In the panel discussion pictured above are Martina Shields of Little Flower, secretary; Elizabeth McKnight of Hallahan whose talk, "Training the Catholic Girl," named courtesy to God and fellowmen as a character building incentive; Joan Haran of Hallahan, chairman; James Devine of St. Thomas More who stated, in "Training the Catholic Boy," that experience in school government fits the student to excel in other fields. The Reverend Robert J. McVeigh of St. Thomas More gave a short talk urging that defense workers should be given opportunity for religious practices, particularly for holy Mass.

In this picture are three charming officers of our Athletic Association, Loretto Tuccio, vice-president; Madeline Bond, president; Frances de Masi, publicity manager. The A. A. Board is composed of representatives from every class. The girls are ushers at games and serve refreshments to visiting teams. They promote new sports and enroll members in the Athletic Association at the beginning of S e p t e m b e r.

OF HALLAHAN

In crder to issue a representative paper, every staff member must lend her time and effort to its making. Depicted above are staff members, each performing her task whether it is pasting or preparing the latest issue for mailing.

The business managers manipulate the commercial work. Rosemary Porter consults Margaret Foster about an ad.

SAND SCRIPT can give you nation-wide publicity, for each publication reaches every corner of America. It finds itself a welcome visitor even in the Philippine Islands. Ever since its appearance in 1933, SAND SCRIPT has progressed with such excellence that it has achieved All-Catholic and All-American honors.

Besides unanimous subscription from students, the school paper has numerous other readers which total a circulation of four thousand. This year, SAND SCRIPT decreased in size because of national defense. Even with less news, SAND SCRIPT remains the "eyes and ears of Hallahan."

A fellow journalist should be a helping hand is illustrated as editor Anna Kain aids an associate in condensation of a news story.

Bernice Cleary reads copy while Mary McAndrew and June Dynan type last minute details for the printer. This is no time for nonsense as staff members will testify.

Silver Sands

The literary ambitions of the students of Hallahan are annually displayed in the January edition of SILVER SANDS. Delightful short stories, exciting essays, and inspirational poems are contributed by numerous, interested students from the four classes.

The many happy hours spent in school are often recalled through pictures. It is to increase the joy of such reminiscing, that SILVER SANDS again appears in June, under the direction of a senior staff. The interesting work done by all departments is represented by photography. Extra curricular activities also get their share of publicity in the June edition.

Art always plays a major part when presenting "Silver Sands". The colored pictures and patriotic cover made the senior art editors, Bernice McGrath and Elizabeth Thompson, work harder at the art work they really enjoy.

The editor of "Silver Sands" is Mary Dunphy, versatile poetess and writer, who has contributed generously to these publications.

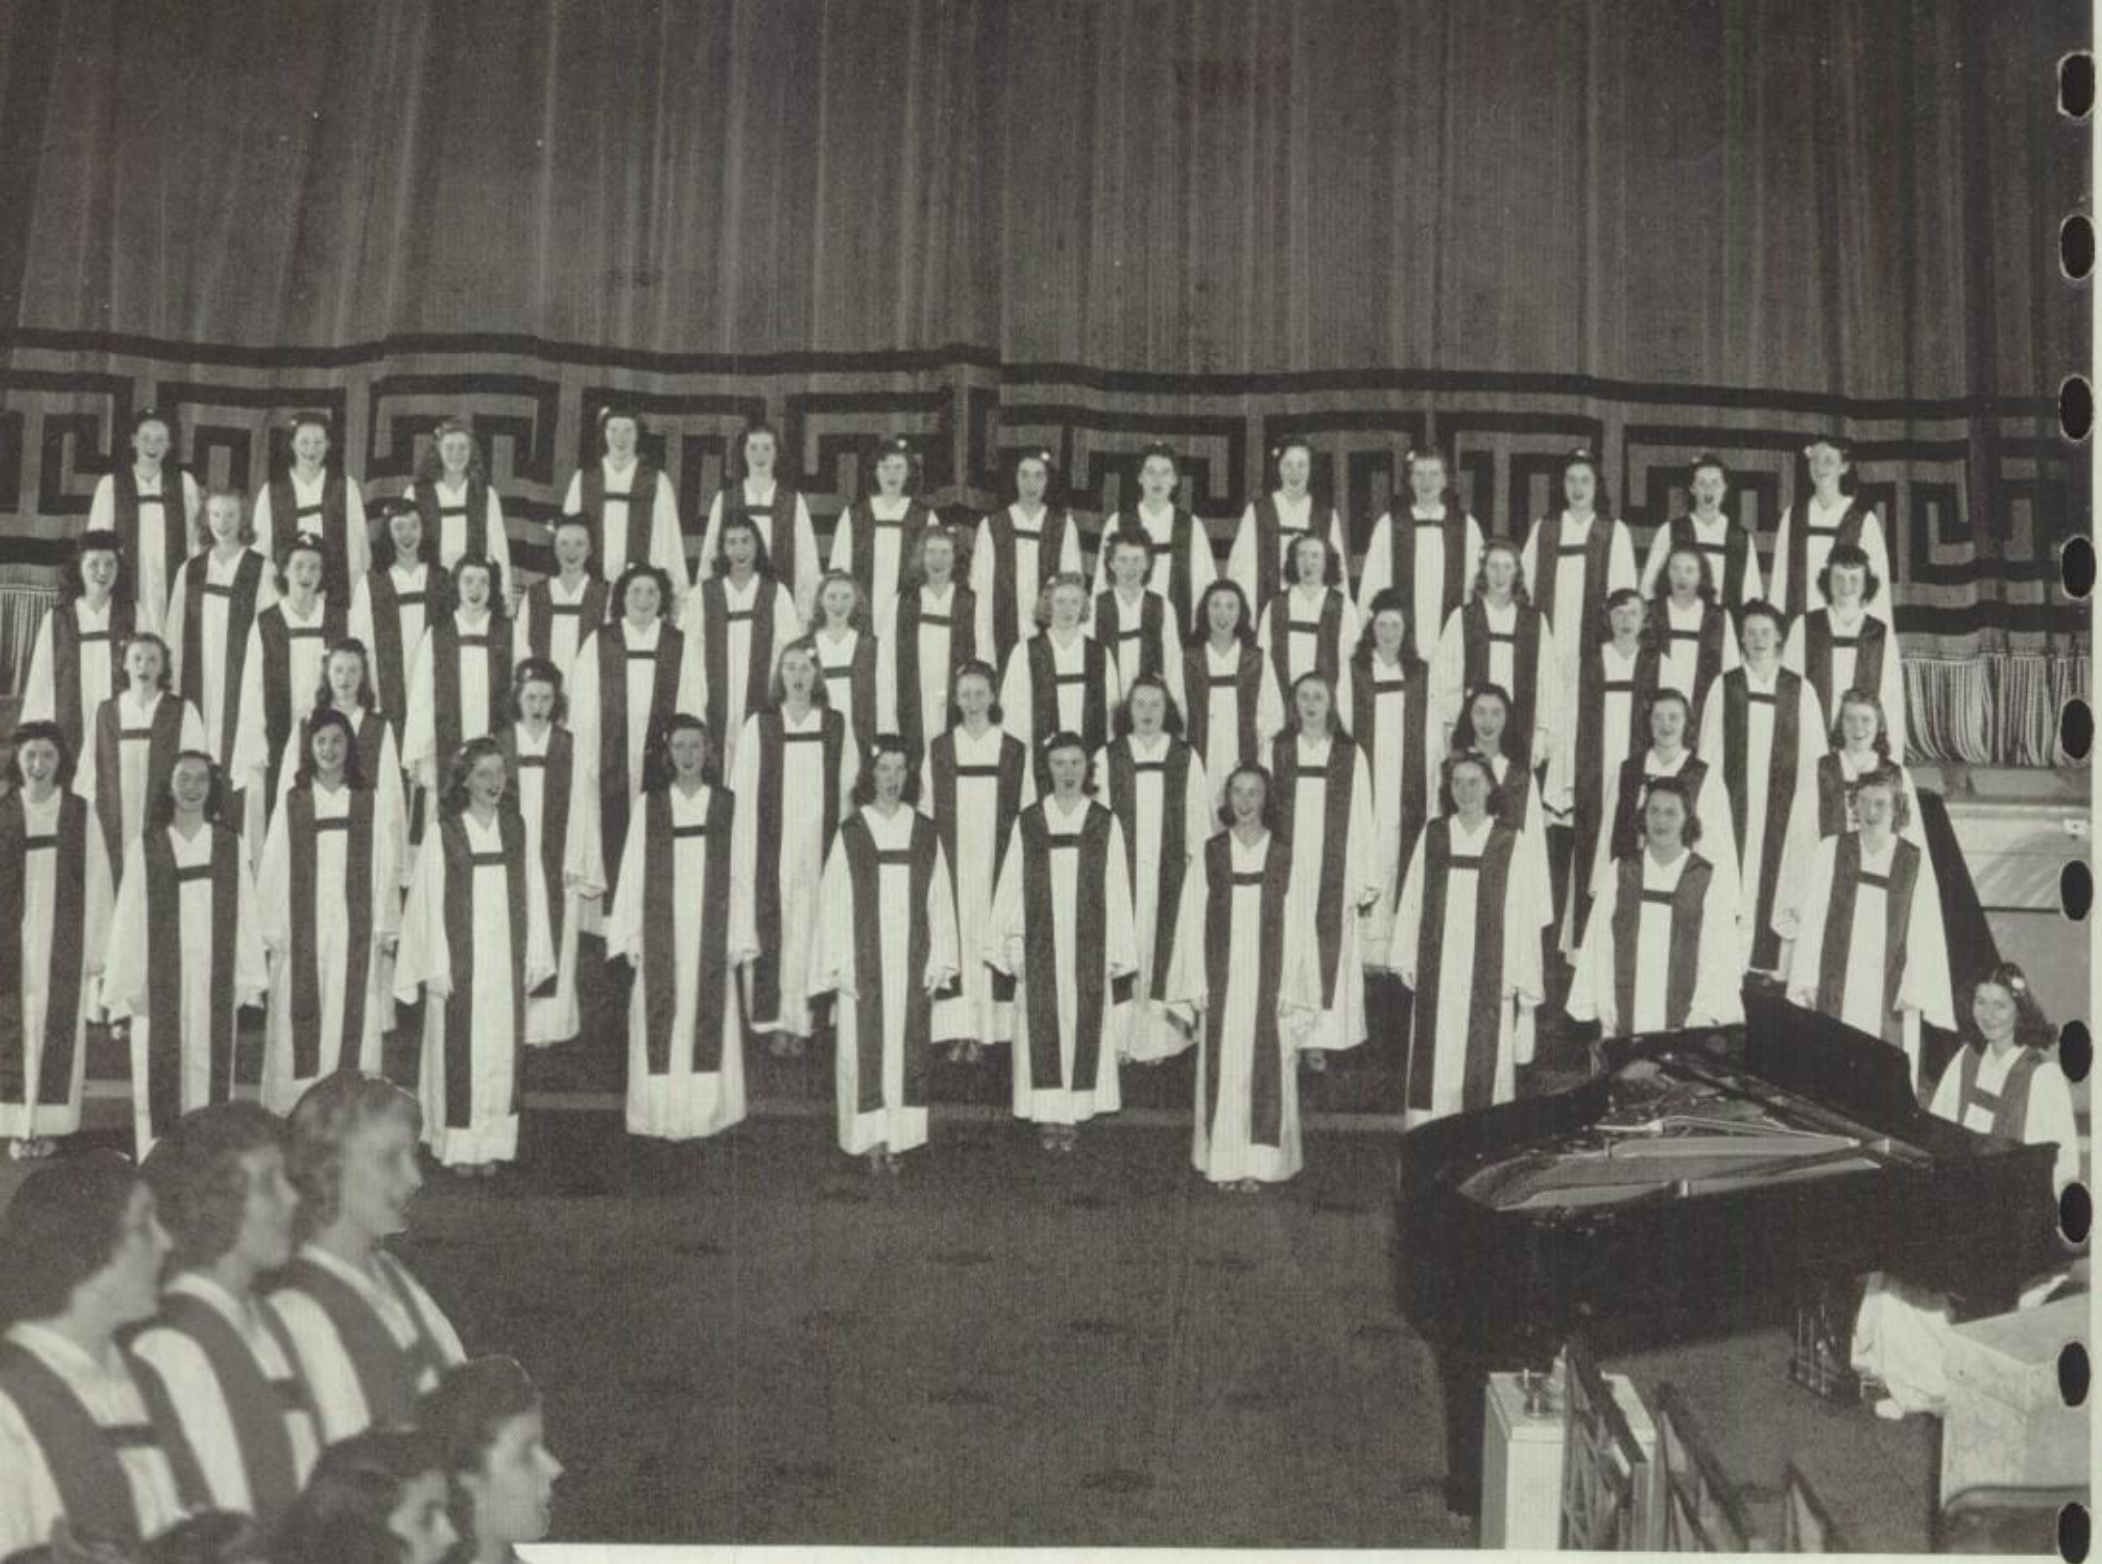
Margaret Kirby, Elizabeth Dougherty, Helen Decker, and Agnes Schneider prove how interesting proof reading can be in preparation of "Silver Sands." A knowledge of correct punctuation is needed, as well as accurate spelling in the preliminary task of preparing the literary edition of the book brought out in January.

What Beauty and Magic Is Music

The orchestra of the John W. Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School offers excellent training to students interested in music. Since its organization, this department has grown in size as well as in achievement. This has been accomplished through the untiring work of well trained instructors, as well as the full cooperation of the students themselves.

The recitals which the orchestra gave this year include the participation in the All-Hallahan musicale at Town Hall and the annual diocesan festival. Other concerts were given at Robin Hood Dell and at Ocean City.

The great st compensation for the students' efforts is to have the curtain fall on a successful performance. After completing four years in this field the young musician has an admirable foundation for a musical career.



Joyously We Sing

The Senior Glee Club is an organization for which many students begin their training in the annexes. Special opportunities are offered through the Sophomore and Junior Glee Clubs. It is from the latter that students are selected for the Senior Club. The 1942 Senior Club has had wide training and experience. Among other special engagements, they sang at the Catholic nurses' graduation at the Cathedral in 1941. This year they appeared at the All-Hallahan Musicale wearing new red stoles. They also sang at the Diocesan Festival. Their extensive repertoire includes "Let All My Life Be Music" by Charles Gilbert Spross and "Gloria Patri" by G. P. da Palestrina.

In Harmony Blended

The purpose of the verse choir is to give an interpretation of old ballads. The choir is composed of seniors, juniors, sophomores, and freshmen. They are eager to achieve distinction in voice and diction, and find that it is a delightful way of improving their tones.

The various recitals of the year included the Christmas play given first for the seniors, and then given in its entirety at the Fleisher's Vocational School. The greatest achievement of all was the Hallahan Musicale, in which was read Archibauld MacLeish's "America Was Promises", a most stirring, patriotic poem. It included many outstanding soloists. In May there was a unique presentation of the combined choirs of West Catholic and Hallahan. They read John la Touche's "Ballad for Americans".

Strike up the Band

When snappy drums announce the advent of marching feet, the crowd cheers vociferously for the Hallahan band. To the strains of martial music, the peppy drum majorettes strut together with a colorful panorama of players. No wonder school spirit glows when the band is on parade.

The appearance of the Hallahan band in 1934 caused much sensation. Since then, it has continued to win acclaim as a result of the incessant work of the members and of their instructors. This year, the band, in uniform military ensembles designed by the Home Economics Department, was a highlight in the all-Hallahan musicale.

Hallahan Basketball In

In four years, the class of '42 saw its basketball team beaten only once, but never down, never out. The Hallahan Varsity always snaps back and fights twice as hard. Being defeated by Norristown in '41 did not discourage its enlivened spirit.

When all Hallahan tries to squeeze into our gymnasium (and I do mean squeeze) to watch our trim, blue and white linen-clad team, one knows that the varsity is ready to give any team a good, stiff fight that it will never forget.

All four years of basketball have been a spectacular pageant of good sportsmanship. The band dazzled all with its music and maneuvers, and helped interpret the all out spirit that is part of a Hallahan game. The lively songs and cheers introduced by our snappy cheerleaders, never fail to spur our team on to a victory for Hallahan and an unfortunate defeat for the other team.

Our outstanding victories were obtained through the systematic cooperation of the players. This school and its varsity have achieved eminence in the realm of sports mainly because of the superb training of our expert coach, Miss Catherine McPeak.

Starting with the bottom row the varsity: Florence McLaughlin, Dorothy Senkowski, Elizabeth Di Filippo, Mary Sheehan, captain, Catherine Weyler, Marie Joyce, Ann Meissler. Second row: M. Rowan, J. Heslin, M. Brennan, T. Logan, E. Aubrey, C. Kearney, A. McGee, and A. Murphy.

The Spotlight

Hockey Team Triumphs

First row: Rita Scardigli, Ruth Jenkins, Frances de Masi, Rosalie Ellet, Elizabeth McArdle, Gervase Bryan, Jane Hammond. Second row: Anne Meissler, Marie Moughan, Loretta Conran, Captain, Anne Boyle, and Madeline Bond.

What a beginning for a Hockey season! It started off with a smashing victory. Was it due to the new equipment and daily traveling conveniences to the hockey field by bus? We were determined this year to play real hockey, and we practised long and earnestly under our "super" coach, Miss Catherine McPeak, whose faithful encouragement resulted in fine cooperation and few setbacks. Our defeats have but strengthened our determination to win next year—and here's luck to you who do!

In competition with diocesan and public high schools, Mary McTague, nautical expert, won first place in the 25 yard free style, in the 50 yard free style, and in diving.

Mermaids and Equestriennes

Swimming and horseback riding are among Hallahan's most popular outdoor sports. Pictured here are Mary McTague, graceful mermaid, and the freshman equestrienne, Anne Voldish, with the handsome charger, Anything. Other attractive sports for which pictures are not available as "Silver Sands" goes to print include: badminton, golf, tennis, roller-skating, ice-skating, baseball, and track, which offer diversion to members of all classes, at the end of the school day.

Leaders of Christian Doctrine Meet

To Philadelphia came the singular honor of playing host the days of November 15-18 to many visiting dignitaries and educators, who gathered together for the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine Convention. Among the hundreds of bishops, priests, brothers, nuns, and laymen, the most noted was the Most Reverend Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, D.D., Apostolic Delegate to the United States. Here he is shown being greeted at the Philadelphia suburban station by His Eminence, Dennis Cardinal Dougherty and the Most Reverend Hugh L. Lamb.

There was no lack of enthusiasm on the part of Hallahan's band as it united with West Catholic's to render a hearty welcome when the Apostolic Delegate arrived in Philadelphia to attend the convention. With the Knights of Columbus, they gave a lusty greeting to the group.

November 15-18 were days crowded with activity for members of the convention which met to discuss the methods of teaching religion, especially to Catholics not in parochial schools. In the course of a busy day, the Cardinal and the Apostolic Delegate are seen receiving guests.

His Emminence celebrated Mass in presence of 70 Church Dignitaries, with Msgr. Bonner as radio narrator.

Dr. Cox and Monsignor Sheen, famous radio orator, who made a magnificent appeal for loyalty to God and country.

Trumpets sounding with brilliancy! The trumpeters of three girls' high schools made a colorful appearance in their band array, while announcing Mass by a fanfare. Misses Magerr, Hertfelder, Waite are Hallahanites.

The students of Hallahan, wearing the traditional blue and white uniforms, assembled at Convention Hall for the Confraternity Meeting on Nov. 17. Above, a section of Hallahanites.

In The Good

The music departments of the diocesan girls' high schools conduct a six weeks' summer school class to which the students devote approximately two days and the teachers, four. Pictured here are teachers of the various instruments: Mr. Cerminara, clarinet; Mr. Siani, bass; Mr. Stoll, trombone; Mr. Ric-ciardi, trumpet; Mr. Briglia, flute; Mr. Raho, oboe; Mr. S. Siani, band director; Mr. Ward, percussion. In the center are seen Mr. d'Amelio conducting the orchestra; Sisters Irenaeus and Cecilia Francis, violin teachers; Sister Agnes Anita, directing the glee club; and Dorothy Gunn, busy librarian.

Oceans of Music

At the end of summer the orchestra takes a trip to Ocean City where they entertain with varied selections of music. Mr. John F. Kane, surrounded by a bevy of girls, poses with them.

After strolling the boardwalk in the morning, swimming in the afternoon, the music students stand in the archway forming a charming picture of girlhood.

All eyes of the audience gaze intently at the baton of Mr. d'Amelio during a concert by the sea.

Echoes From The Dell

While the Glee Club sings lilting melodies, the audisnce sits entranced during a summer concert. Peggy Lacey conducts the Glee Club as they sing the "Mother Goose Suite", "Show Boat", and selections from "Porgy and Bess". Many music critics and friends come to hear the orchestra perform at the famous Dell in Fairmount Park away from the ncise of the city. Mr. Stoll, Mr. Riccardi, and Mr. Briglia chat with Mr. d'Amelio before the performance begins.

Musicians Reach A New High

For the first time in the history of the school all members of the music department were represented in an all Hallahan musicale. Almost five hundred students participated.

Reverend John Murray was guest conductor of both the Senior A Cappella Choir and the Junior Glee Club. Mr. Felix Meyer swayed the orchestra under his baton. The concert band was a breath-taking spectacle in exquisite uniforms of shining white. Mr. S. Charles Siani conducted them in a program of both modern and classical pieces. Miss Margaret M. Kearney directed the verse speaking choir in "America Was Promises."

As the last strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner" resounded through Town Hall on March 15, it was evident that the All-Hallahan Musicale was a success.

SPRING MUSIC FESTIVAL

This year the music festival, given by the combined orchestra, included students of the five Catholic girls' high schools of this diocese: Hallahan, West Catholic, Little Flower, St. Hubert's and Notre Dame. The program was composed of the following numbers: "L'Italiana in Algeri," by G. A. Rossini; "Prelude to the Third Act of Lohengrin," by Wagner; "A Brown Bird Singing," by Haydn Wood; "Gold and Silver Waltz," by Franz Lehar; and "Oxford Street" from Eric Coates's "London Suite."

Benjamin d'Amelio conducted the orchestra; Nicola Montani, the glee club; Michael Guerra, saxophone ensemble; and Maryjane Mayhew Barton, the harp ensemble.

Flowers that Bloom in the Spring

Holy Redeemer Dedication

A new page was added to diocesan history when the Chinese Church and School of the Most Holy Redeemer were dedicated October 5, 1941. His Eminence Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, who officiated at the dedication, celebrated Solemn High Mass. The Most Reverend Gerald P. O'Hara, Bishop of Savannah-Atlanta, and the Most Reverend Hugh L. Lamb, Bishop of Philadelphia, were present. The Hallahan band headed the parade of Holy Name members who escorted the Cardinal.

The Very Reverend William A. Kavanagh, S.T.D., in charge of the parish, welcomed visitors at the evening concert given by selected players from the diocesan orchestras.

Cecilia Fiala smiles quizically at the chop suey served in the Cathay Tea Gardens. Below, crowds follow the Hallahan band as it leads the parade into Chinatown for the dedication of the Holy Redeemer Church. Many of the Chinese parishioners wore their native garb which added color to the momentous event. The band members assisted at the first Solemn High Mass in the Church, and received Holy Communion.

Peace On Earth

While pictures display only selected groups, the entire student body participated in the exercises which brought home simply and beautifully the real meaning of Christmas. Carollers sang through the school and before the stained-glass window prepared by the art department. The band provided the traditional Yuletide music.

No Scrooge Admitted to Our Party

To secure a merry Christmas for the less fortunate, the A. A. Board sponsored its annual party in the gymnasium. Here pictured, members of the board collect the price of admission, canned goods. Below, a tap routine of thirty-two goes through its paces. In the lower left, note preparations for the Chattanooga Choo-choo. Special dancers ranged from the toe dancer to the scarecrow impersonator. The colorful Conga contrasted with the Hill Billies, while a timely note was struck by comedians on a bicycle built for two.

Freshman Day

A clever door prize for a shy freshman! Elizabeth McKnight did the honors. Rose Merriman had difficulty in persuading her temperamental horse to respond but there must be magic in her whisper because Dobbin gave a star performance. A scene witnessed often in Hallahan's halls was depicted in the freshman day play; two little freshmen lost their way and had to consult knowing seniors.

Press Conventions

Our Retreat

The Reverend John H. Donnelly was retreat master for the juniors. Father Donnelly's talks stressed points which are important to the youth of today. The retreat was held in our gym where a portable altar was set up for Mass.

Catholic Action

At the annual Alumnae Communion Breakfast held at the Bellevue-Stratford, the Catholic Literature Group opened its drive the "Trickle of Nickels." Pictured here are the seniors who collected nickels in book-shaped banks.

Rita Loughrey and Madeline Folz defend Hallahan in a spelling bee with South Catholic, sponsored by the Geuting Shoe Company.

Here shown in the Army Day Parade are Alice Klause, a Junior, as Betsy Ross, and Eleanor Potocsny, a Senior, as her attendant.

Mrs. Roosevelt greets Beverley Brisbane while Mr. John B. Kelly and Miss Alice Marble watch smilingly.

Our Tribute

To Our Lady, Queen of Peace

On May first, Hallahan girls had their May procession to honor Our Lady, Queen of Peace. The students, with the exception of the May queen and her attendants, wore their uniforms and black veils. The Cathedral built to seat 1200 housed 2500 on this day. Hymns favored from childhood were sung. After the crowning Rev. Anthony J. Flynn gave the sermon and benediction.

Pictured is the marching band leading the procession as students walk to the Cathedral, behind the banner of our Lady. Twenty seniors in white attended the May queen, Marion Gilligan, and are here pictured on Cathedral steps. Our Lady Queen of Peace smiled, enshrined in a woodland grotto.

For Catholic Leadership . . .

In preparation for social contacts, groups and problems awaiting graduates, clubs are formed to develop initiative in their members. Debate and Camera Clubs, Leadership, Temperance and Eucharistic Society associates, Cafeteria and Locker squads are examples of this. Latin, French, Biology and Chemistry Clubs are joined by students in these classes. Serving as usher in the school or at its social function is an opportunity further to develop finesse in service to others.

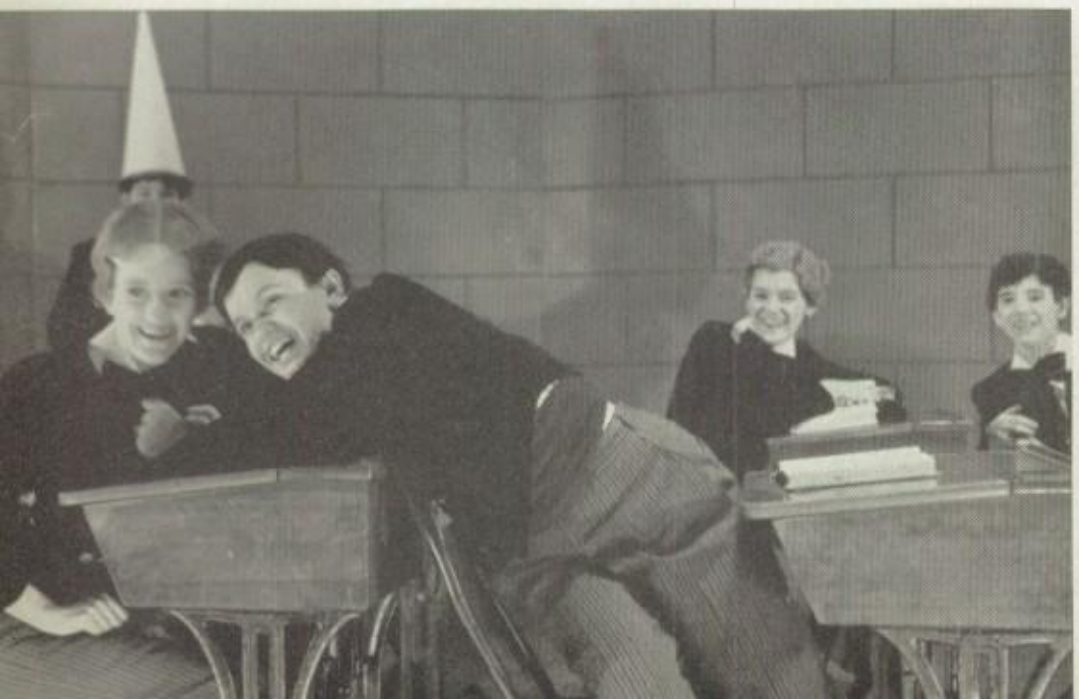
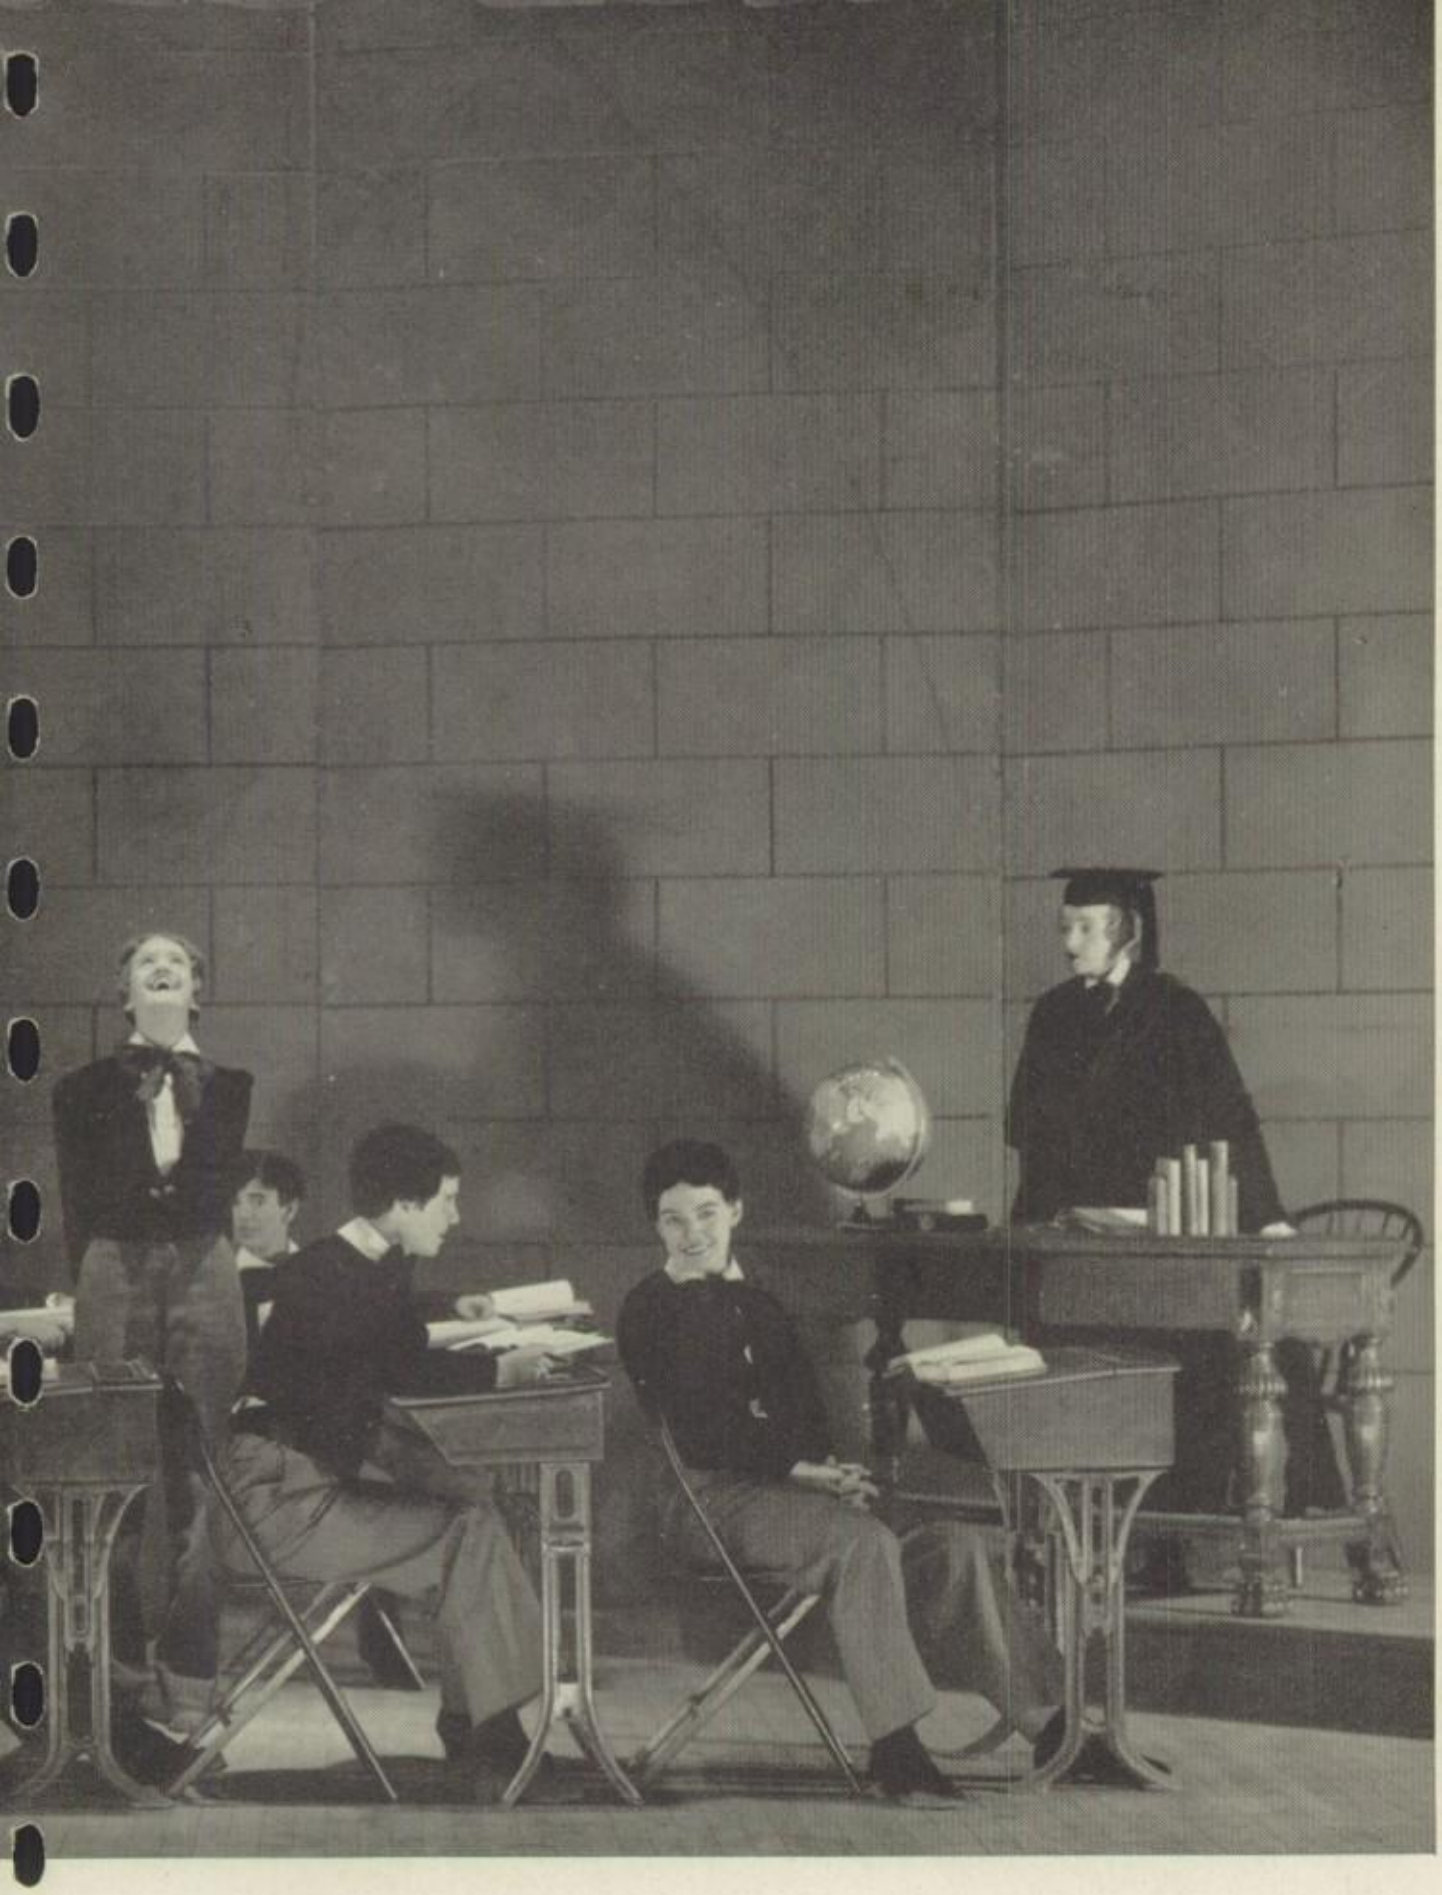
Good-Bye Mr. Chips

Colley, portrayed by Marie Barnes, is the center of attraction. They welcome Mr. Chips with one of their school-boy pranks.



Once again the Senior Class of 1942 has displayed its superiority in the field of dramatics by presenting James Hilton's "Good-bye Mr. Chips". This talented, capable group of seniors gave time and effort that this might be one of the best that Hallahan has ever offered to its public.

After the curtain had been drawn, the memorable words "Good-bye Mr. Chips" lingered in the minds of those who applauded thunderously. The audience laughed with Colley and sympathized with the lovable Kathy. They were amused by the henpecked husband, Mr. Upton, and they cried with Chips.



Under the guidance of the kind, lovable character of Mr. Chips, the one time mischievous scamps learn to love the old gentleman for his fatherly companionship. Merivale, Winslow, Saunders, Pulvis, Ainsworth, Wagstaff, Smelly, Webb, Vick, Wilson, Pim, Pulman, Unsley, Potts, and Beaumont are all his boys.

1. This is the community room where professors congregate to talk over matters of the school. It is in this memorable room that Katherine was first introduced to all the professors and made such a good impression.

"To love is to remember and I love to remember" are the parting words spoken by Chips at the dinner party given in his honor by all his boys in Brookfield Hall.

Chips (Rita C. Quinn) and Ralston (Betty R. Freeland) are shown below discussing the resignation of Chips from Brookfield school. Chips could not leave as he was Brookfield.

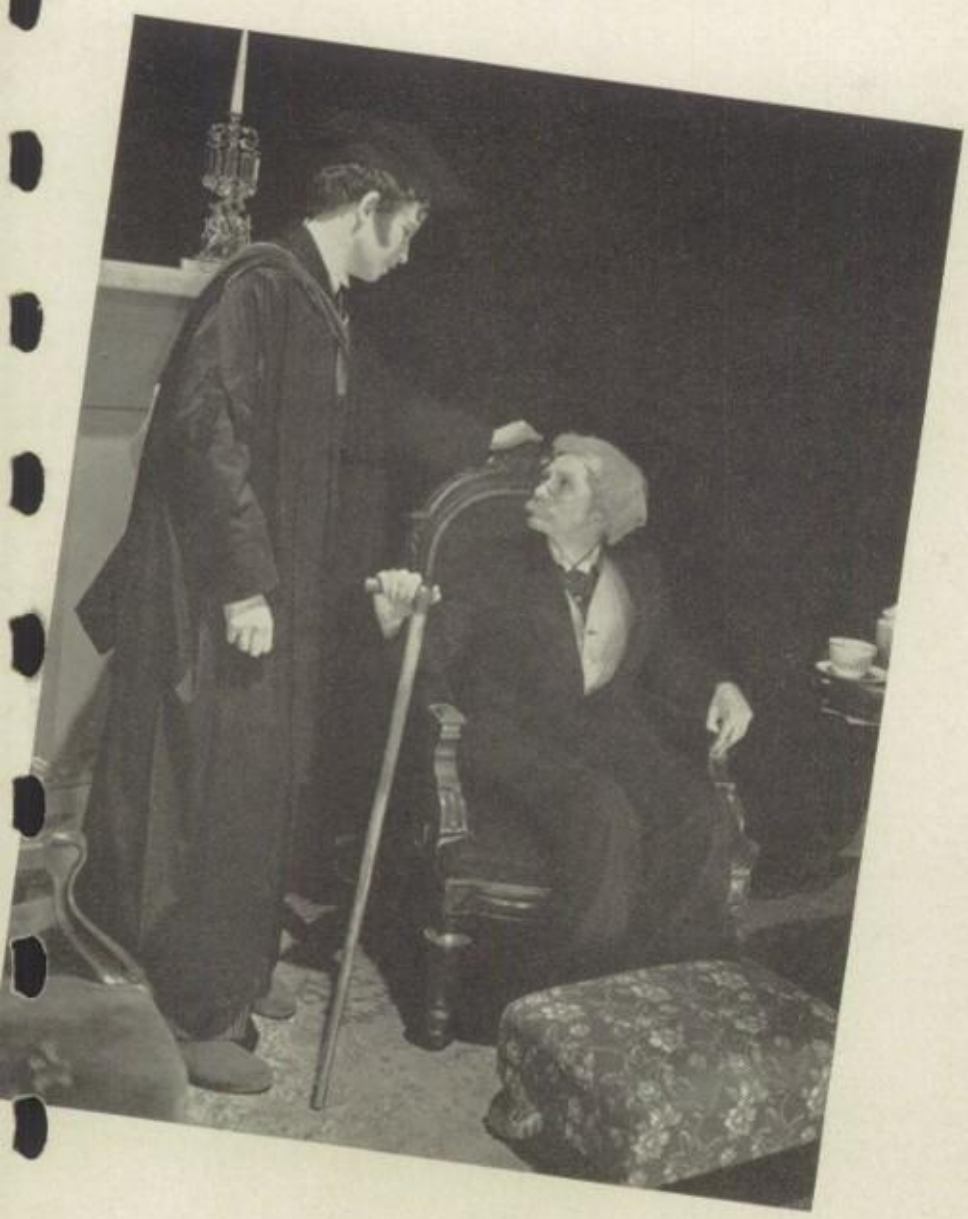
Lucy Boland portrayed Kathy, the charming young wife of Mr. Chips.



During the First World War Chips is shown being urged to return to Brookfield as headmaster. Chips demurs before he finally agrees.

These immortal words, "Good-bye Mr. Chips", will always live in the hearts of all his boys. Linford, a victim of a practical joke, utters these last words to the irresistible Mr. Chips.

Till We Meet Again

Class Day is a day dear to the heart of every senior. It is the last one on which the senior class assembles to have an enjoyable chit-chat over a delightful luncheon. Here the pleasant memories of the last four years pass in retrospect. But between joyous laughs comes that indescribable feeling that tugs at the heart of friends about to part.

The girls in the center picture give all indications of enjoying themselves. At the left, we find Elaine Maher, '42, and Jane Matsinger, '43, rendering a duet, while at the right we see Muriel Ford, Hallahan's star ballerina. The faculty has come to join us in the happiness of this day.

Deep In The Heart

This year the Senior Prom was held in the spring and the title chosen was "Blossom Ball." On April 10, Miss Senior and her escort danced to the tunes of Herby Woods' Orchestra at the Bellevue Stratford. Pictured here are our charming committee and their escorts; the receiving line; the presidents of our Catholic Girls' High Schools; the grand march; Monsignor Bonner with his associates and the chaperons; a box of eager watchers; Judge Carroll welcoming two marines, and two pictures of the dance floor.

Palatial towers of academy high above the clear river form scene of great beauty as boat reaches destination after a delightful river trip.

Seniors Attend Mass Together For Last Time

The graduates of 1942 will long remember the impressive Baccalaureate Mass celebrated on June 1, at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul. This event means as much to the girls as commencement itself. Formerly, the graduates of all the boys' and girls' diocesan high schools of Philadelphia gathered at the Cathedral to attend this Mass together. But, this year, Hallahan was particularly honored to be the only school to hold her Mass in the famous Cathedral. After a stirring sermon was delivered, each senior received Holy Communion. The sight of the reverent students kneeling in rapt silence was a source of inspiration. During the last exciting week of a senior's school career, the Mass furnishes a thrilling and refreshing pause for the hopeful graduate.
